Matters More Quiet at Paris—Further Proclamations and Manifestoes—The Nationals Will Respect the Conditions of Peace—The Situation Unchanged in Montmartre and Belleville—Examination of the Execution of Lecomte and Thomas—Counter Movements on Foot.

PARIS, March 21.—The insurrectionary official journal urges the National Guard to exercise a vigilant watch for criminals attempting to re-enter Paris. The payment of the National Guards, regularly, and the distribution of alms to the needy, has been resumed.

A proclamation signed by Gen. DUVAL, and dated simply Paris, demands the election of a Mayor of Paris, with Deputy Mayors in all the arrondissements. The proclamation says it is not the intention to separate Paris from France, but only from the Empire and the Government of National Defense, and from their measures of treason and cowardice, and concludes with an appeal to the people to contain themselves as we are doing, and to follow our example in opposing oppression.

A decree further postpones the maturity of commercial bills, and prohibits landlords from expelling lodgers for non-payment of rent and until the issuance of a fresh order.

The Insurrectionary Central Committee has decided to respect the conditions of peace, but considers it just that the largest proportion of the indemnity should fall upon the authors of the war.

Many of the Nationals met last night and adopted resolutions for mutual protection and maintenance.

The Siècle urges upon each battalion of the army to take possession of its own quarter, and says if this is done the rising will be promptly repressed, and probably without bloodshed.

Paris is quiet; the cabs have resumed their trips, the theatres are open, and the railway trains from Paris to Versailles run regularly.

The situation in Montmartre and Belleville, however, is unchanged. All business and labor are stopped. There are frequent night alarms. The tocsin and drums are sounded, and cannon fired, and the Montmartrists rush to arms fearing an attack from the 80,000 troops at Versailles.

The official journal says the hour has arrived when the common people of the capital can save the country, and appeals to the bourgeois for support in the emergency.

The insurrectionary official journal says, in extenuation of the execution of Gen. LECOMTE, that he had four times ordered his troops to fire on a crowd of inoffensive women. Gen. THOMAS, says the journal, was in plain clothes, sketching the fortifications of Montmartre.

PARIS, March 21—Evening.—All the chiefs of battalions of the National Guard of the Second Arrondissement have signed a manifesto, joining their voices to those of the Deputies to the Assembly, and the Mayor of Paris, in a determination to defend the Republic and its tranquillity against all persons. They have organized a special force, and measures for the protection of their arrondissement, and appeal for the cooperation of all in the work for conciliation and abstention from crime. A similar movement is being made in other arrondissements.

There was a demonstration in the streets today in favor of the union of all men of order. The demonstrators proceeded to the insurgents' head-quarters, but found their passage barred by bayonets. An angry altercation ensued, after which they retired, but the movement has a tendency to spread.

M. THIERS has sent M. GLAIS-BIZOIN as a delegate, on the part of the Government, to endeavor to conciliate the insurgents, the prospect for which now seems more hopeful.

The Mayors of Paris refuse to give their concurrence to the holding of the elections on Wednesday.

French Towns and Cities Opposed to the Revolution—The Nationals Occupying the Forts on the West of Paris—Another Reassuring Circular—The Government and Assembly Obtaining the Mastery of Events.

LONDON, March 21.—A large number of French cities and towns have adopted and forwarded to Versailles resolutions protesting against revolution, and proclaiming their adhesion to the Government.

PARIS, March 22.—The National Guards search all trains leaving Paris, and stop the egress of all military personages. The Nationals now hold and have occupied all the fortifications on the west of Paris.

VERSAILLES, March 22, via LONDON—5½ o'clock P. M.—President THIERS has sent another circular to Prefects of Departments, informing them that the advices received by the Government from all the provinces are reassuring. Attempts to create disorders have everywhere failed. In Paris the citizens are organizing for the suppression of sedition. An army now numbering 47,000 men protects the Government and Assembly at Versailles, which are rapidly becoming masters of events. A proclamation is about to be issued, warning the insurgents to lay down their arms. Lyons, Marseilles, and Bordeaux, where troubles were anticipated, remain tranquil.

These official representations cannot be doubted. The Government is hourly growing stronger. Backed by the Assembly, supported by the country, with the majority of the citizens of Paris really in its favor, and surrounded by a constantly increasing army, it is already formidable, and begins to inspire a wholesome fear of its power. New Prefects have been appointed for eighteen departments.

The Elections to be Proceeded with Without the Mayor's Concurrence—Another Manifesto by the Central Republican Committee—Appointments by the Commanders of the National Guards.

PARIS, March 22, via LONDON—6½ P. M.—The official journal of the insurgents says the Central Republican Committee, unable to come to an understanding with the Mayors, is compelled to proceed with the elections without their co-operation. The elections are postponed until to-morrow, when they will be held under the superintendence of an electoral commission appointed by the Central Committee.

The Commander-in-Chief of the National Guards has appointed RAONE DUBUISSON Chief of the general staff, Col. VALSERANNE, Commandant of the Hotel de Ville, and Col. DARNELLE, Commandant of the Tuilleries.

An editorial in the same paper seeks to prove that the Assembly now sitting at Versailles is legally incomplete, on the ground that the elections of some of its members were vitiated by foreign occupation and pressure. The Chamber is described as narrow-minded, exclusive and rural. The article continues: "On Paris devolves the duty of compelling respect for the sovereignty of the people. She must see to it that she is not separated from the provinces and that the provinces are not separated from each other. She must be the capital of France. It is unquestionably her right to proceed with the elections of a Communal Council. The Central Republican Committee has taken wise and indispensable measures to prepare for the establishment of Communal Councils and for the election of all the chief officers of the National Guard by the members."

A paragraph also appears in the insurgent organ, under the title of "Avertissement," stigmatizing the resolutions adopted at the meeting of editors of the Paris Press, and published in several journals yesterday, as a direct provocation to disobedience of the Government's decrees, and an encroachment on the sovereignty of the people. Warning is given that while the Central Republican Committee intends to respect the liberty of the Press, it is determined to have the decision of the people respected, and will permit no incitement to disobedience. A repetition of the offense will be severely punished.

Action of the National Assembly—An Appeal to the Troops and the People—Offers of Aid from all the Departments—Chanzy Held as a Hostage—No Way to be Declared Without the Sanction of the Deputies.

VERSAILLES, March 21.—The National Assembly has approved of a proclamation condemning the criminal attempts of a few madmen to involve France in ruin and dishonor, which are repudiated by the whole country. It appeals to the troops and citizens to rally and save the noble Republic. The Assembly has also declared urgent the bill abrogating the decrees supressing the councils general.

M. PICARD announced in the Assembly that all the functionaries of departments have offered to the Assembly armed support. It was also announced that the Government will present to the Assembly on Wednesday a bill providing for the election of municipalities.

M. SCHOELCHER reported that he had visited Paris, but failed to obtain the release of Gen. CHANZY. Admiral SAISSET, in some remarks, gave details of the arrangements of the insurgents, who, he said, hold Gen. CHANZY as a hostage, and will shoot him if they are attacked.

VERSAILLES, March 22.—In the French National Assembly, today, M. THIERS gave expression of the thanks of the Government and the Republic to Deputies THIARD, CLEMENCEAU and SCHOELCHER for the courage displayed by them in meeting the Paris insurgents. M. THIERS also announced that the Government would not declare war against the insurgents, unless instructed to do so by the Assembly.

Return of Prisoners from Germany to be Stopped for the Present.

BERLIN, March 22.—The statement comes from a reliable source that orders have been issued to stop the return home of French prisoners for the present.

DRESDEN, March 22.—The French Government has as yet appointed no commissioners to arrange for the return of the prisoners in Germany.

Reported Loss of a Transport with 3,000 French Prisoners Contradicted—The Germans Quietly Celebrating at Metz.

LONDON, March 22.—A report has been in circulation here that a French steam transport, with 3,000 prisoners, returning from Germany, has been lost with all on board. The story bore marks of utter absurdity on its face, and is now positively contradicted.

A dispatch from Rouen says the Germans have celebrated their victories there in quietness.

GERMANY.

The Empire will not Interfere with the Paris Troubles—Bismarck and Moltke Receiving their Reward—The South German Members in the Parliament—The Emperor's Speech Made from the Marble Throne of Charlemagne.

BERLIN, March 22.—The semi-official Provincial Correspondenz of today, in an editorial on the troubles in Paris, says: "Germany will certainly not interfere with affairs in Paris now, but she will know how to guard her interests and to press to their fulfillment the engagements entered into by France."

Count VON BISMARCK has been elevated to the rank of Prince of the German Empire, and Gen. Count VON MOLTKE has been presented with the Grand Cross of the Order of the Iron Cross.

BERLIN, March 21.—At the session of the German Parliament today, Herr FRANKENBURG, by virtue of seniority President of the Chamber of Deputies, on taking his seat, warmly greeted the South German members. A motion passed the House congratulating the Emperor upon the occurrence of the seventy-fourth anniversary of his birth to-morrow.

LONDON, March 22.—A special dispatch to the Daily News from Berlin says the ceremony upon the opening of the German Parliament was imposing in its simplicity. The Emperor manifested deep emotion during his speech, which was delivered from the marble throne of CHARLEMAGNE, which was brought from Aachen (Aix-la-Chapelle) specially for that purpose.

GENERAL EUROPEAN NEWS.

Rejoicings Over the Royal Marriage—Many Others go and do Likewise—Conversation Between Italy and Austria.

LONDON, March 22.—The London newspapers are enthusiastic over the marriage of the Princess LOUISE. There were general rejoicings and celebrations everywhere throughout the United Kingdom. Many marriages were solemnized simultaneously in different parts of England. A great many dinners and balls were given in London in honor of the event, and the illuminations in the evening were very extensive. At Esher, in the County of Surrey, where the bridal party left the main road for the Palace of Claremont, a royal seat belonging to the King of the Belgians, the Marquis of LORNE and wife were received by an address from the parish authorities, and passed under a number of triumphal arches. The bridal party proceeded from Esher to Claremont, where the honeymoon will be passed.

FLORENCE, March 22.—The Italian Senate has approved of the convention recently made with Austria.

Status of the Pope—The Emperor of Austria Decorates the Prussian Minister.

ROME, March 22.—Clerical journals here report that communications have passed between the Cabinets of Vienna and Florence with reference to the status of the Pope.

VIENNA, March 22.—Gen. VON SCHWEINITZ, the Prussian Minister, was today received by the Emperor and presented with the Grand Cross of the Order of Leopold.

GERMAN REJOICINGS.

Procession and Demonstration in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 22.—The German triumphal procession was two and a half miles long. The flags and decorations were very brilliant, and horsemen dressed to represent the military of Germany from its earliest history to the present time added interest to the procession. Several prominent American military companies acted as escort to the various divisions of the procession. Business is generally suspended, and the city presents a glad appearance.

Peace Jubilee Preparations in New-York.

The Special Committee appointed by the Fest Committee to prepare the details for the German peace jubilee on Easter Monday, met at Liederkranz Hall last night. In the absence of the Chairman, Mr. SIGESMUND KAUFMANN presided, and a complete list of organizations which have been enrolled for the Fest procession, was presented by the Secretary, Mr. PERCHT. It appeared that no less than eighty organizations, military and civil, have been enrolled; and, judging from the announcements, a formidable demonstration may be expected on Easter Monday. The reports of the various subcommittees were received in reference to the progress of the preparations. The Preparation Committee, through Col. TEMME, reported that the Police arrangements in reference to the procession have been placed in the hands of Capt. MOUNT. Capt. MOUNT stated that he had had an interview with the Police Commissioners, when the necessary arrangements of placing a sufficient Police force on duty, to preserve order on the day of the procession, had been made. The Invitation Committee recommended in its report that the line of march be extended to the City Hall Park, and that in the evening a subscription banquet be prepared at Liederkranz Hall. The proposition gave rise to a prolonged debate, during which it was stated by Mr. PERCHT that a committee had already conferred with the Mayor in reference to the matter, who had offered to place the City Hall at the disposal of the Committee for the review. A motion to refer this matter to the Executive Committee was carried, which will, no doubt, result in the determination of the line of march, and locating the review at the City Hall.

Nominations to the Military and Naval Academies.

Mr. S. S. COX, Representative of the Sixth Congressional District, has notified Mr. A. J. MATTHESON, of this City, that he (Mr. COX) has the nomination of one student for the West Point Military and one for the Naval Academy, and has asked Mr. MATTHESON for his advice in the matter. Mr. MATTHESON has replied to Mr. COX, recommending that the matter be left open to competition among the scholars of the public schools of the Ninth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth Wards, and the suggestion has been adopted by Mr. COX.

Forging the Signature of a Railroad Superintendent.

On the 8th instant, PATRICK O'MALLY, residing at No. 1,038 Third-avenue, sought employment as a car conductor on the Second-avenue line of street cars. At the depot he met JOHN MORAN, alias Andrew Butcher, and FRANK MCNALLY, and bought a paper from them, purporting to be an order on the starter to give him a car, signed by the Superintendent and Secretary of the line. The forgery was not discovered until Monday, up to which day O'MALLY ran a car on the road. MORAN and MCNALLY were arrested, and taken to the Yorkville Police Court, where they were ordered to find bail in $1,000 each to answer. MORAN gave the requisite bail, and MCNALLY was locked up in default of bail. O'MALLY was held in bail to prosecute.

Shooting Affray in the Fifth Ward.

At a late hour last evening PETER MCGINNIS and JOHN MCGILL entered the saloon at the corner of Beach and Greenwich streets, and after being there a few minutes began quarreling. Presently the former accused MCGILL of having seduced his sister, and, drawing a revolver, began firing upon him. MCGILL ran from the store as the pistol was drawn and was pursued by MCGINNIS, who fired as he ran, following the fugitive as far as Washington-street. The first shot took effect in the right shoulder of MCGILL, the second in his left arm, near the elbow, and the third merely grazed his hat. MCGINNIS then turned and fled, escaping for the moment, but was soon arrested by Officer PHILLIPS, of the Fifth Precinct, in the liquor-store corner of Washington and Jacy streets, and was locked up in the Leonard-street Police Station. The wounded man was taken to the Park Hospital, and is considered to be in a critical condition. MCGINNIS is a butcher, residing at No. 91 Hudson-street, and MCGILL is a cracker baker.

Annual Calico Hop of the American Coterie.

The annual calico hop of the American Coterie came off last evening at Irving Hall, and was well attended. The ladies were dressed in handsome calico dresses, and seemed to enjoy the pleasures of the evening very much, more especially as the majority of the gentlemen present were young bachelors. The Committee consisted of Charles D. J. Roelke, floor manager; Thomas F. Chambers, assistant floor manager; Floor Committee, John Lang Weinheimer, Frank Weinheimer, Robert Neyer, P. V. Cartier, George R. Lydic, George A. Bubel, George Meeman, Wm. P. Graham, James B. Lerbeck; Reception Committee, Otto Zahn, George W. Gugel, Denis D. Collyer, Fred. Roehsler, Edward R. Paine, John Silva, Otis M. Coles, J. Fuerth and Henry Giesemann.

The Fenian Exiles Snubbed by John Savage.

The Fenian Convention met at noon, yesterday, at No. 21 Avenue A, when JOHN SAVAGE made an elaborate statement of the transactions during the past three years. Speaking of the negotiations with the Fenian exiles for effecting a union, he expressed his opinion that those exiles rather hastily assumed to dictate to them and to command the resources of the Fenian Brotherhood in the United States. He referred to the fact that the Fenian organization was a representative body, whereas the position assumed by the exiles in forming a Directory was thoroughly antagonistic and at variance with the instincts and policy of American citizens. According to the constitution of the Fenian Brotherhood the name "Fenian" cannot be given up. [The members here rose and cheered heartily.]

The address was received by the Convention and referred to committees to report on.

GENERAL TELEGRAMS.

THE SAN DOMINGO COMMISSION.

Preparations to Leave Key West—The Commissioners to be Landed at Charleston or Savannah.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 22.—The Tennessee, with the San Domingo Commissioners on board, will leave for New-York to-morrow morning. It is expected that a tug will meet the Tennessee off Charleston Bar, and take on board a portion of the Commissioners and attachés, so that they may go to Washington with the report by rail. The Tennessee will be due off Charleston on Saturday.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 22.—Official dispatches received here today announce that the San Domingo Commission will be landed at Savannah, and that they will proceed from that port to Washington by rail. The Tennessee will probably reach Savannah to-morrow night.

Abstract of the Report of the Commissioners.

Mr. C. C. FULTON, who is with the San Domingo Commissioners, communicates to the Baltimore American the following, purporting to be substantially the basis of the report prepared by Mr. WADE, and amended by other Commissioners:

First—That the closest investigation and the most thorough examination of the books and records have disclosed nothing that would implicate Gen. BABCOCK, or any other person connected with the annexation treaty, in any corrupt practices, while the negative testimony proves that all such charges are entirely baseless.

Second—That the people are more united and earnest, and more nearly unanimous, on the question of annexation than any other people have ever been on a subject of such vital interest. Dr. HOWE is preparing this portion of the report, which is most emphatic and decided. He says that the unanimity is almost equal to what it would be if a vote was taken in the United States on the question of monarchy or republicanism.

Third—That the character and habits of the people, especially those in the agricultural regions, are very good; that they are kind, gentle, honest and industrious, and desire peace, that they may be able to cultivate the soil and herd their cattle without let or hindrance.

Fourth—That the soil is rich and productive; that the mountains are covered with vegetation, and that immense quantities of mahogany, dye-woods, and the most valuable timber for shipbuilding, abound in all parts of the island, only that along the streams having been cut and forwarded to market.

Fifth—That the Dominican Government is still desirous of annexation to the United States, and is prepared to ratify the treaty rejected by the Senate in 1870, the whole payment required being $1,500,000.

Sixth—That Hayti has never made any claim upon the Dominican Republic of a monetary character; the only difference between the two countries is as to the proper location of the boundary line.

Seventh—The Commission will also report that the country is remarkable for good health; that the physical and mental conditions of the people will compare favorably with those of any sparsely-settled country; that the religion of the people is mostly Catholic, and that in point of morals they are neither the greatest saints nor the most hopeless sinners in the world.

Eighth—On the question as to CABRAL and his character and influence the Commission will be more decided. They will hint to Baez more strongly that and border ruffians—banditti, who rob and plunder the people of Dominica, and retreat to Hayti when pursued. A man who is universally execrated by the people, and is only sustained by certain commercial interests, under the conviction that annexation will destroy monopolies that permit the plunder of the people.

Ninth—As to BAEZ, two, at least, of the Commissioners, and probably all of them, will give the opinion that he is not the knave that Mr. SUMNER paints him, and Mr. WADE will go so far as to express the belief that he is not only controlled by patriotism, but that he is honest in his efforts to benefit the people. Certain it is that he seems to be a very popular President, and to all outward appearance equally as popular as any President we have had.

Tenth—As to the mineral wealth of the island, thus far nothing of great value has been discovered, though Prof. BLAKE, who journeyed through a region more prolific than any other in mineral resources, has not yet returned. There is abundance of iron, mountains of crystal salt, plenty of petroleum, little or no coal, and no gold, silver or copper.

Eleventh—In short, every question of inquiry can only be answered in the most favorable manner, as to the people, soil and climate. It is capable of being made the most beautiful and attractive spot on the face of the earth, and seems to be a land largely blessed by God, but cursed by man.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

Progress of the Ship-Canal Expedition—San Salvador and Honduras—Deplorable State of Affairs in the Latter Country.

ASPINWALL, March 18, via KINGSTON, Jamaica.—The United States war steamer Nipsic arrived on the 8th from the Atrato River. The latest news from the advance party of the expedition was that they were within six miles of the summit of the elevation, which was less than 200 feet. All were well and confident of success. The Nipsic returned to the Atrato on the 10th. The survey will probably be completed by the 1st of May. The Osipee arrived at Panama on the 10th, and the Jamestown on the 17th to relieve the Resaca. News from Panama of the 16th says that the survey on the Pacific side was progressing favorably. Commander SELFRIDGE ascended to the junction of the Paya with the Syra Rivers, but no new discoveries were made.... Honduras has formally declared war against San Salvador. The invading Salvadorians have retired to their own territory, but the immigration of leading Salvadorians increases. The news from San Salvador, down to the 12th, is that the country, toward the frontier, is in a deplorable condition. Desertions and arrests are frequent, and executions, it is feared, will probably soon follow. The extradition treaty between San Salvador and the United States is declared in force.

CANADA.

Elections in Ontario—Liberal Gains—Manitoba Elections Quiet.

TORONTO, Ont., March 22.—The Elections in the Province of Ontario took place yesterday. The result as far as heard from, indicates a loss to the Government party of from eight to ten votes. The opposition claim a victory, but the Government organs contend that they have a good working majority. All the members of the Ministry have returned. The elections throughout the Province were keenly contested. The utmost order and good feeling prevailed, and not the slightest disturbance is reported. Dispatches from Winnipeg have been received to March 4. The Manitoba elections were held and passed off quietly. The House was called to meet for the dispatch of business on March 16.

THE INDIANS.

A Weed Party Badly Frightened—Indians Stealing Horses.

NORTH PLATTE, Nebraska, March 22.—A party of citizens, who had been after wood, twenty miles south from here, came in last night and reported the appearance of fifty or sixty Indians around their camp. The Indians having set fire to the prairie around, the citizens made a hasty retreat for home, leaving their wood. No shots were fired by either party. The Indians have a large number of skins and are anxious to come here to trade, but they are not permitted to do so. On the 12th inst., nineteen head of horses were taken by the Indians one mile west of the town, and only three were recovered.

The Coal Investigation at Harrisburg—Testimony for the Miners' Association.

HARRISBURG, Penn., March 22.—The investigation into the coal question still continues. A large crowd of iron and railroad men are present to testify to the damage the strikes are to them. JOHN SINEY, President of the Miners' Association, was called to the stand this afternoon, and testified at great length in behalf of the miners. The investigation will close in a day or two. The Committee permits no reports of its sessions, but we learn that the evidence thus far brought forward has been greatly to the disadvantage of the Working Men's Benevolent Association. The reply of the Minnunous coal miners to the proposition for an alliance extended by the Working Men's Benevolent Association, will put an end to negotiations in that direction, and foil the scheme to shut off the entire supply of coal from all sources. Their fight is now for the life of the Association. Rumors of an approaching resumption of work by the miners are beginning to circulate among coal men. Some even expect to see it this week, and a large number of well-informed dealers fix the 1st of April as the limit of the suspension.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Gov. Holden Removed by the Court of Impeachment by a Party Vote.

RALEIGH, N. C., March 22.—The High Court of Impeachment, sitting for the trial of W. W. HOLDEN, Governor of North Carolina, voted today on eight articles of impeachment preferred by the House, with the following result. Forty-nine members were present, and a two-third vote was required to convict:

On the first article, he was found not guilty—yeas 30, nays 19. On the second article the vote was yeas 32, nays 17—not guilty. On the third article he was found "guilty"—yeas 37, nays 12. On the fourth article "guilty"—yeas 33, nays 16. On the fifth, "guilty"—yeas 40, nays 9. On the sixth, "guilty"—yeas 41, nays 8. On the seventh, "guilty"—yeas 36, nays 13. On the eighth, "guilty"—yeas 36, nays 13.

An order was then passed removing Gov. HOLDEN from office and disqualifying him from holding office of honor or profit in the State. On this order the vote stood 36 in the affirmative and 13 in the negative. All the Senators were present except one. The complexion of the Senate is thirty-six Conservatives and fourteen Republicans. One Republican was absent, Mr. FLYTHE, of Northampton.

THE WEST.

Three Men Buried Under an Embankment—A New Lottery Scheme.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 22.—A dispatch from Quincy says, while three men were excavating in a sand-cut on the Pike County Railroad, near Kinderhook, yesterday, they were all buried alive, the bank caving in on them. Their names are not given. They were Swedes. A few days since the National Co-operative Dry-goods House, of which GEO. C. LEMON & Co. claim to be proprietors, was arraigned before the Criminal Court. It was charged in the indictment that this scheme, by which $1,500,000 were to be distributed to certificate holders, was nothing but a lottery. Judge JAMESON took the case under advisement, and this morning gave his decision to the effect that the scheme is naught but a grand lottery, and LEMON & Co. were found guilty. They will appeal to the Supreme Court of the State. State-Attorney REED declares his intention of prosecuting all parties now engaged in this city in this business. The number is immense.

THE SOUTH.

The Virginia Legislature—A Fistic Encounter Between Agents of Naval Interest.

RICHMOND, Va., March 22.—The Senate, today, finished the long railroad war in the Legislature by passing the House bill for the sale of the State's interest in the Richmond and Petersburg Railroad for $600,000 to N. H. ELLISON and others, of this city, thus defeating the proposition of Gen. MAHONE to buy it. Later in the day, an affray occurred between Gen. MAHONE and JOHN LYON, the attorney for WALTERS, of Baltimore, in whose interest the State's interest is bought, in which blows were exchanged and a pistol fired by MAHONE. No serious injury was done.

The Arkansas Legislature—Judge McClure Acquitted—Removal of Political Disabilities Voted Down.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 22.—A Little Rock (Ark.) special dispatch to the Avalanche, to-night, says that after the argument in the impeachment case of Judge MCCLURE, last night, the demurer was sustained by a unanimous vote, and Judge MCCLURE was thereby acquitted. Today a motion was made and adopted, to give counsel for MCCLURE $2,000. Messrs. THOMAS and WHITE, colored, made a minority report today, opposing any removal of disabilities, on the ground that the spirit of rebellion was as rife today as during the war. An effort was made to take up the House resolution, memorializing Congress for the removal of political disabilities, but it was voted down by a decided majority.

THE NEW-JERSEY LEGISLATURE.

More Erie Victories in the Senate—Three Veto by the Governor—Adulterated Liquors.

TRENTON, N. J., March 22.—In the House, the bill to repeal the Erie act of last year was laid over till Tuesday by a vote of 33 to 26. In the afternoon, the second Anti-Erie bill, that repealing the act of last session, whereby the Erie escapes numerous suits for damages for over freights, was laid on the table by 39 to 21, making the second victory for Erie today.... The Governor sent in three vetoes—on the bill to transfer the Riparian funds to the School fund, supplement to Greenville township regarding the Street Commissioners, and to authorize the City of Paterson to borrow money. The House in the evening killed a bill to regulate fares and freights on railroads.... The Senate passed the bill to prohibit the manufacture and sale of adulterated liquors, and establishing a quarantine at Perth Amboy.

THE WEATHER.

Synopsis for the Past Twenty-four Hours.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 22—7½ P. M.—The low pressure Tuesday night on the coast of Maine has continued to prevail, with cloudy and clearing-up weather and brisk north-west winds. The pressure has but slightly increased in the Eastern and Middle States, and is now again falling, as is also the case on the Gulf coast. Clear weather has generally prevailed in Southern and Gulf States, but is now followed by cloudy weather. The storm-centre indicated Tuesday night, west of the Missouri River, is now in Central Indiana and Illinois, with brisk north-easterly winds on Lake Michigan, brisk northerly in Iowa and brisk south and south-westerly in the Ohio Valley. Its influence is shown in fresh southerly winds on the Gulf and fresh north-easterly on Lake Superior.

PROBABILITIES.

It is probable that the area of low west barometer will move to the north-east with high winds on the Lakes and cloudy, and threatening weather in the Middle and East Atlantic States. Fresh winds are probable on the Gulf and South Atlantic coast.

Observations on Mount Washington.

SUMMIT OF MOUNT WASHINGTON, March 22.—Observations at 7 P. M. Barometer, 29.37; change minus .12; thermometer, 9°; change minus 17°; relative humidity, .79; wind W. S. W.; velocity of wind, 75 miles per hour. Dense clouds enveloped the Summit all day, and the wind has been blowing fiercely. The barometer was lowest at 2 P. M., and the wind then blew at the rate of 89 miles per hour. The newly-formed frost-work excels in beauty any previous formation.

POUGHKEEPSIE, March 22.—WILL VANDOVER, a member of a hook and ladder company, was arrested in Ellenville, Ulster County, last night, charged with originating the recent heavy fires there. It is stated that his entire company was cognizant of his acts.

WASHINGTON.

Carrying Out the Republican Programme in the Senate—Success at the Resolution Attacking Legislation—Attempts to Saddle Other Measures Upon It—A Tie Vote on Income Tax Repeal—What Remains to be Done—The House Not in Working Order.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The action of the Senate today has seemingly settled the fact that enough of the Republican Senators will stand by the agreement in caucus to carry out the programme there made. In the first place the resolution of adjournment came up. Mr. HAMLIN moved to substitute the bill in place of the res. Mr. MORTON opposed any proposition to fix a day of adjournment as contrary to the honorable obligations of Senators to the agreement made, and moved to lay the resolution on the table. The motion was carried by 30 to 22. The Republicans voting against the motion to lay on the table were CALDWELL, FERRY, HAMLIN, HILL, HITCHCOCK, TIPTON, TRUMBULL, WINDOM, and KELLOGG. The Anthony resolution limiting the subjects of legislation was passed also. The rest of the caucus programme is to pass the resolution of instructions to the Judiciary Committee, await the report of that Committee, and take action on it. But it comes out today that there is quite a wide difference as to the understanding in caucus with regard to the last part of this plan. It is asserted by several Senators that they did not suppose they were agreeing to any course further than the passage of the resolution of instructions, and the resolution restricting legislation went no further. When the report of the Committee was added, as a subject to be acted on, CONKLING, SYMMARY, HILL and EDMUNDS declined to vote, on the ground that they could not vote aye, and would not make issue as to the real understanding by voting no; but after the speeches now prepared are made and the resolution of instructions passed, the opinion is still freely expressed that adjournment will be immediately voted. It will be noted by the terms of the resolution the Senate is not bound to act on the Committee's report, but it is left as a subject on which action may be had. During the discussion today Mr. TRUMBULL intimated that the Judiciary Committee had had the subject of legislating for the troubles at the South before it, and that there was no likelihood of agreement. The improbability of that Committee's agreeing on any measure has been heretofore stated, and is confirmed by the remarks of Mr. TRUMBULL.

INCOME TAX REPEAL.

The strength of income tax repeal in the new Senate, as compared with the last was pretty accurately shown by one of the votes on the amendments to the Anthony resolution today. It does not appear to have been changed in any degree. Mr. CAMERON moved to add to the resolution as one of the measures for the action of the Senate a bill to repeal the income tax. When the roll call was complete, the vote stood 36 to 36. Then Mr. JOHNSON voted nay, and Mr. POOL followed, voting yea. Mr. FLAGG, the yea and nay clerk, looked smilingly up to the Vice-President, and said, ante omnes, "It's a tie." Mr. COLFAX looked sharp around the Senate, to see if some of the gentlemen who had "dogged" the vote would relieve him from the dilemma, but no one rose. He took the list in his hand hesitatingly, and looked again, but no one relieved him. Then he said in his quick, prompt way, "On this question the yeas are twenty-seven, and the nays are twenty-seven; the Chair votes in the negative, and the amendment is lost." This was hardly a fair test vote. Were the question squarely presented to the Senate, there would probably be one or two majority for repeal.

THE ANTHONY RESOLUTION.

At one o'clock today the Senate took up the Anthony resolution, and after an hour of debate, in accordance with the understanding of yesterday, the voting on the resolution and amendments began. Mr. SHERMAN's amendment, making exceptions from the subjects excluded from action the present session, was adopted by 31 to 19, nearly a party vote. The fact of a misunderstanding among the Republicans, as to the understanding in caucus on this point, encouraged Mr. THURMAN to move to lay on the table. The Democrats gained no advantage by this, as not one Republican voted for it, and it was lost—19 to 28. Then followed a shower of amendments, and numerous calls of the yeas and nays, consuming an hour and three-quarters. TRUMBULL moved to include the House bill repealing the duty on coal. This was loaded down with salt, tea and coffee, and then altogether voted down by 33 to 22. The other amendments sought to be made to Mr. TRUMBULL's amendment, and which failed, were to add "revenue reform and the tariff generally," by HAMILTON, of Maryland, 15 to 37; a proviso, by MORRILL, of Vermont, to take the duties off coal only when imported from countries willing to be annexed to the United States, 17 to 30; free sugar, 17 to 30; and the repeal of the income tax, 27 to 27, decided by the casting vote of the Vice-President in the negative. On Mr. SUMNER's motion to include his Civil Rights bill, no division was called for, and only his own voice was heard in affirmative response. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN's motion to include a bill for organizing a revenue collection police force was rejected without division. The motion of Mr. SAWYER to include a general amnesty bill was lost by 20 to 31. The resolution, with SHERMAN's amendment, was finally adopted by a party vote.

SHERMAN'S RESOLUTION.

Mr. SHERMAN's resolution of instructions to the Judiciary Committee is now before the Senate. Mr. SCOTT spoke some time this afternoon, and holds the floor to continue his speech to-morrow. Attempts to have a time fixed by unanimous consent at which a vote should be taken on this failed. Mr. MORTON said that it must be fully debated, the meaning of which expression is plainly that an opportunity for debate after the resolution is passed is looked upon as hopeless.

EVENING SESSION OF THE HOUSE.

The House once more took an early adjournment today, preferring not to remain in session as the possible danger of enacting mischievous measures. The truth is that the House, in its present unorganized condition, is at the mercy of the Senate. That body is in working order, passes bills every day, and sends them to the House, which must let them lie on the Speaker's table or take the risk of passing them without consideration by the regular committees. Besides, it is impossible to originate any measure in the House in the regular way, all of which impedes legislation and makes the House powerless. This would be well enough, perhaps, if the Senate was in like condition. If an adjournment is not effected this week an earnest effort will be made for the appointment of the committees.

EUROPEAN MAIL NEWS.

ARRIVAL OF THE HAMBURG STEAM-SHIP THURINGIA.

The steam-ship Thuringia, from Hamburg, via Plymouth March 11, reached this port yesterday. Valued additions to our foreign files were received by the courtesy of Capt. Eckmann, the date of letters and papers being fresher by one day than that of those gotten by the City of London.

DISTURBED PARIS.

The Factitious to Revolution—Active Preparations for an Uprising—What the Leaders Want—Paris Literature.

Writing from Paris on March 7, the correspondent of the London Standard says:

"The gentlemen of Montmartre and kindred localities seem utterly impervious to the paternal admonitions of M. ERNEST PICARD and his colleagues, the lachrymose M. JULES FAVRE. They utterly ignore the Government and the Assembly, and the only leaders they recognize are the base patriotic members of the Assembly who resigned their seats a day or two ago on the ground that having sanctioned by its vote the dismemberment of the country, the Assembly no longer represented, and its deliberations were null and void. They have made the Hill of Montmartre their Mount Aventine, and have effectually fortified it by mounting upon the place St. Pierre—the well-known spot from which the first balloons were launched—the mamons and vitrailleuses they took last Friday, and which they had previously located at the entrance of Boulevard Ornano, at the top of the Boulevard de Magenta. About a week ago you are aware that these exemplary persons, who continue to receive their fifteen pence a day from the Government, took possession of some thirty guns and mitrailleuses, and were dragged up the Hill of Montmartre and pointed in the direction of Paris. Seven of these guns have now been placed in battery at the top of the hill, and protected by earthworks. A distributor to the Journal des Débats assures us, however, that the mere fact of such large ordnance being pointed on Paris does not imply any hostile intention on the part of these amiable fusiliers-marins. They are, it seems,

> The mildest-mannered men
> That ever scuttled ship or cut a throat.

The members of the One Hundred and Sixty-ninth Battalion of the National Guard assured our esteemed vendeur that they only meant to save the guns from the Prussians, and as for the mitrailleuses, why, they had been very elevated by the mere fact of wanting something better to do. They were tired of playing at shuckpenny, and drinking questionable wine, and as the brave fellows set to work. The other guns—they are about twenty of them—are chiefly steel mitrailleuses, with a few howitzers, and two new guns which seem to protect the ornament. They are parked nightly nightly there, on the little square behind the church. The patriots have placed sentries in front of their positions, and allow no one to pass, in virtue of orders from the Committee, which seems to be far better obeyed at Montmartre than the Government has ever been in other parts of France. On Boulevard Ornano and in its immediate neighborhood, there are about nine guns and a barricade. There is, at least, there was, a kind of barricade yesterday, across the Boulevard des Batignolles, surmounted by a black flag. I am convinced that if a couple of battalions were sent to disarm these rascally rogues they would run like rabbits, and the vile business would be over in half an hour; but, if it is true that 40,000 men have been allowed to receive reinforcements from Lyons and Marseilles, that must materially alter the position of affairs.

WHAT THEY WANT.

You may be curious to know what these people want. I cannot supply better information on that point than is to be found in their special organ, the Cri du Peuple, written by their chief writer, M. JULES VALLÈS, who styles himself a "Bachelor of Letters." The sort of Bachelor he is is proved by the fact that he was lately a reader in a social order. I expressed myself thus: The writ is made out; the bailiff arrives; there are only four or five in Paris who dare perform this lugubrious work—four or five, the same number as those who accord the guillotine. The bailiff arrives. He takes everything; the clothes hanging on a nail, and the arm chair where the old man died; the bedstead; he takes the clock; he takes the clock; he seizes the soup simmering in the pot, and the child's tucker lying on its cradle. If the man pulls off his blouse to remove the bed the law allows him to keep, the bailiff pounces upon the blouse. When everything is under seals, and marked down for sale, if the man in despair exclaims: 'You have got everything, leave me within these walls a week, a fortnight, a month longer. Without shelter, I can find no work, and my children will die of cold and hunger,' the bailiff, with a grave and assured reply, the Commissaire de Police and his men, knuckle-dusters in their pockets and swords by their sides. 'You must be off—do you hear?—you must leave this fetid hole you have grown to love as home. All is over; the Winter sky above their heads, the muddy street beneath their feet. And yet—and yet—the proletarians had but the will! There are 20,000 rich who over a space of thirty square leagues hold the soil of our country. We are 1,600,000 whom they work and whom they ruin—1,600,000! They have been patient so far. But now the poor know what they are worth—they know that labor is everything, and that there is not one fortune in Paris but has its roots in the profits made of the Faubourgs. The bourgeoisie, however, must come to terms with the people which is now King. Landlords of Paris, the Republic leaves you one moment's breathing time to effect your reconciliation with the people, if you can. But if you remain obdurate in your obstinacy and contempt, who knows what danger threatens you? You will have the sense of your crime. The Empire was less impeached by the 150,000 men who on Jan. 19 followed VICTOR NOIR to the grave, than the bourgeoisie is now by the poor who owe three quarters and cannot pay them. Will the bourgeoisie throw a portion of its cargo overboard, or will it run the risk of sinking with the drowning people? In any case the wind is rising and the tempest is threatening."

This is significant enough. The idea thus suggested by the ingenious Citoyen VALLÈS has been eagerly caught up. The seed has found congenial ground, and we have already a prolific crop of rank and noxious weeds. One of these bears the title of "Suppression of Rents," and makes out that landlords voted for the plebiscite of 1870 and (before they had brought about war with Prussia," they owe the average $5,000 to the citoyens, who pay $14 annual rent. This was selling like fury this morning in the Faubourg du Temple.

A DIRECT APPEAL.

We have also an open appeal to insurrection, published by Citoyen BLANQUI, in a paper just started by VICTOR HUGO & Co. It is too characteristic not to be quoted in full:

"TO THE TRAITORS: What is the danger that threatens France? The road on which she came to grief yesterday. We mean the deplorable popularity of some tribunes of the people—men who have misleaded. The crime is treasonable to the traitors whom the people trusted, and accepted as its guides, and who have given it up to the reactionists. Mournful last Sister names, written in letters of blood on all the paving stones of Democratic Europe. Yes, they are great culprits, and greatest among them those to whom the people, deceived by inflated periods, trusted its sword and its shield—whom it enthusiastically proclaimed the arbiters of its fate. Woe betide us if, on the day of the party triumph of the people, the indulgence of the moment—ever prone to forget and forgive—should suffer power to be regained by any one of these men who have betrayed their trust. For the second time it would be all over with the revolution. Let the workmen ever have before their eyes this list of accursed names, and if any one of these names figures in Government, let them unanimously denounce the traitor. Speeches, sermons, programmes—all mere lying and humbug. The same jugglers will return merely to perform the same trick with the same thimble; they will form but the first link of a chain of furious reaction. Curses and vengeance overtake them if they dare to reappear! Shame and contempt on the masses who march full fed to their doom! Arms and organization, that is the decisive element of progress—the only serious means of doing away with wars! Those who have steel can command bread. People kneel before bayonets; disarmed masses are swept away! France sees bristling with armed workmen the advent of socialism is at hand. Before the proletarians in arms, obstacles, distance, impossibility, everything will disappear. As for those proletarians who allow themselves to be amused by ridiculous street processions, planting trees of liberty, lawyers' rounded periods, there will be soft sawder first, then bullets finally grape-shot—and want for ever. Let the people choose!"

I may be wrong, but I think these extracts instructive, and, in my opinion, they fully account for the cohesion at Montmartre, the plundering of powder magazines, and the wholesale robbery of cartridges by those whom Citoyen BLANQUI describes as "the people."

THAT'S OUTRAGEOUS.

On March 8, the London Times correspondent wrote:

"The Vengeur, under the inspiration of M. PYAT, is constantly striking out new and original political ideas. One of its most recent constitutional theories is as follows: 'The sovereignty of the people is permanent. Consequently, the electors have, at any hour which may suit them, the right to convoke their committees, who shall exact or provoke the resignation of a deputy who does not vote in the manner in which he ought to vote.' A most furious article in the same paper on the appointment of Gen. D'AURELLES DE PALLADINES is very significant of the commotion which his arrival and entry on his functions as the Commander-in-Chief of the National Guard is sure to provoke. A martinet of martinets, he is a man of iron will and unflinching severity. Not only did he shoot soldiers, but officers repeatedly for running away in the combats before Orleans, and it is quite certain that he will either crush the existing insubordination in the National Guard or it will crush him. I quote the article at length, as it is too fully illustrative of the situation not to be worth reading: 'Let the National Guard of Paris continue to organize itself and to stand upon its guard; let it redouble its energy and watchfulness; let it not allow a cartridge or a musket or a cartridge to be taken away. Let it bear in mind that it is universal suffrage in arms, right disposing of force; that it has no orders to receive from the Government, the mandatories of the people, but that it has orders to give to them. Knowing well that a corps d'élite is impossible as long as the Regular Guard watches over the safety of the city and the safety of its inhabitants, the idea of the Rue de Poitiers who say form the Government will attempt to disorganize it, to divide, reduce, but will even allow it to be corrupted to turn their object of disarming it. They will exercise patience and hypocrisy, making use of all powers of authority and artful methods, inventing expedients or pretexts, depriving the Parisian militia one day of its cartridges, of its rifles, of its bayonets, finally taking away its muskets. In order not to lose our muskets, let us take the cartridges and keep them. The Governments of the 4th of September and General TROCHU did not choose to make use of the National Guard for the defense. It was feared that it would constitute disciplined, well-armed, well-drilled, well-officered, well-organized, well-disciplined, well-officered, well-organized, well-disciplined, well-officered, well-organized, well-disciplined

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The evidence daily grows stronger of a conction against the attempted revolution in Paris. More proclamations have been made, but none of them announce any new step of importance. The Central Committee declares its intention to respect the conditions of peace. The city, with the exception of the Montmartre and Belleville Districts, is quiet; the cabs are running again, and the theatres are opened. The Nationals are constantly in fear of an attack from the troops of Versailles. The chiefs of the National Guard of the Second Arrondissement have pronounced against the insurrection, and others are expected to follow. Demonstrations have been made in favor of order by the people of Paris. M. GLAIS-BIZOIN has been sent by the Government to conciliate the insurgents, and the Mayor has refused to concur in the holding of the elections. Many cities and towns of France have sent resolutions to the Government protesting against the revolt and declaring their adhesion to the Republic, and there is no movement anywhere in favor of the National Guards. President THIERS has sent out another reassuring circular, and the Government is confident of its ability to restore order with its army of 45,000 men. A proclamation warning the insurgents to lay down their arms is about to be issued. Gen. CHANZY is still held as a hostage. The National Assembly is united in action against the revolution.... Count von BISMARCK has been made a Prince of the German Empire, and MOLTKE has received the decoration of the Order of the Iron Cross.... The South German members were warmly greeted in the Parliament at Berlin by the President of the Chambers....Emperor WILLIAM's speech was delivered from the marble throne of CHARLEMAGNE, brought from Aix-la-Chapelle for the purpose....Yesterday was the Emperor's seventy-fourth birthday....The Italian Senate has approved of the convention recently made with Austria....The Marquis and Marchioness of LORNE pass their honeymoon at Claremont.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, a remonstrance was received from the Free-trade League against the repeal at present of duties on coffee and tea, as endangering more important propositions. The House resolution to adjourn today was non-concurred in—20 to 23. Mr. ANTHONY's resolution, limiting the legislation, was taken up and the discussion continued. At 2 o'clock the vote was taken on Mr. SUMNER's amendment to provide for the suppression of Southern outrages, and it was agreed to—31 to 26. A motion to lay the resolution on the table was then rejected—28 to 19. The repeal of the duties on coal, salt, tea, coffee and sugar was proposed as an amendment, and rejected—23 to 28. The bill to repeal the income tax was also proposed as an amendment, and defeated by the casting vote of the Vice-President. Mr. SUMNER moved his Equal Rights bill as an amendment, and that was rejected. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN moved as an amendment the bill to promote the collection of the revenue, which was also rejected. The General Amnesty bill was next proposed as an amendment, and rejected—21 to 31. Mr. ANTHONY's resolution was then agreed to by a vote of 36 to 18.

In the House the three members from New-Hampshire appeared and were sworn in. A report was made in favor of the validity of the election of the Tennessee members, and Mr. EDWARDS, of Arkansas, was sworn. Mr. YOUNG, of Georgia, took occasion to deny that he had expressed or entertained any feelings hostile to the members of the House. Some time was spent in propositions relating to adjournment, which came to nothing. A memorial was presented asking for an increase of the duties on furs, and a protest against the removal of those on tea and coffee, was submitted. The Senate bill re-establishing the office of Surveyor at Bucksport, Me., was passed.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

Among the bills introduced in the Senate was one to provide for proper drainage of lands in New-York City and County, brought in by Mr. TWEED. The bill relating to the collection of Harbor-master's fees in New-York, was passed. The bills to consolidate the debts of the City and County of New-York were passed, Mr. TWEED having called up the motion to reconsider the adverse vote given a short time before. At the Evening Session, the Viaduct Railroad bill was slightly amended and ordered to a third reading. In the Assembly, an adverse report was made on the bill to amend the law relative to assessment of real and personal estates, and it was agreed to. The Governor returned, with objections, the bill providing for the inspection of gas-meters, and the veto was sustained. The Senate resolution requesting the Canal Board to reduce the canal tolls on applied and all contracts, was adopted. A bill was introduced to protect conductors of fast express trains. Mr. FERAR offered concurrent resolutions designed to make the canals free by substituting the Commissioners of the Canal Fund to borrow on the credit of the State enough money to pay the Canal and General Fund debts now charged on the canals as fast fall due, by bonds or certificates of stock, running forty years at five per cent., to be redeemed by a sinking fund of one per cent. raised by tolls; the annual expenses and interest to be paid also from tolls. A bill was introduced to appoint five commissioners to superintend the construction of the new Capitol. The Brooklyn and Jamaica Railroad bill was returned by the Governor and recommitted. The bill to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors was lost. At the evening session the subject of exempting bonds and mortgages from taxation was taken up, the measure being the bill to amend the revised statutes with this object. The bill was killed by a vote of 75 to 31.

GENERAL.

The President yesterday nominated JOHN W. FORNEY to be Collector of Customs at Philadelphia.

The trial of Gov. HOLDEN, of North Carolina, closed yesterday. The Senate voted him "guilty" on six of the eight articles of impeachment, and adopted an order removing him from office and disqualifying him from holding office of honor or profit in the State, by 36 to 13. There were just thirty-six Democratic and fairness Republican Senators present.

The national banks have been required to report their condition at the close of business on the 18th inst.

The subscriptions to the new loan yesterday amount to $1,850,000.

The investigation into the charges of bribery against the Massachusetts State Constabulary is in progress before a committee of the Legislature. Members of the force are accused of receiving sums of $25 and $5 as hush-money from liquor-dealers.

The Assembly Railroad Committee yesterday gave another hearing on the Erie Classification bill, when Mr. VANDERBILT made an argument for the management, and Mr. TAPMAN spoke for the stockholders.

LLOYD BRITTON, colored, was hanged in Williamsport, Penn., yesterday, for the murder of JACOB RAY, a German, on the 16th of November last. He died protesting his innocence.

The Governor will give a hearing to parties interested in the Pneumatic Tube Underground Railroad in New-York, on Thursday, the 30th inst., at 2 o'clock, in the Executive Chamber.

The Methodist Episcopal Conference of Rhode Island was opened yesterday at Providence, Bishop JAMES presiding.

The grist-mill and dwelling-house of GIDEON TRAVER, in Tachanic, N. Y., were destroyed by fire on Tuesday night. The loss is about $20,000; insured for $9,000.

The Canadian elections are over, and the Liberals claim to have gained eight or ten members. The Government still claims to have a working majority. The Manitoba elections have passed quietly.

The District Court met at Cheyenne, Wyoming Territory, on the 21st inst., and four ladies were among the jurors. JOHN BOYNE, a half-breed Sioux Indian, who murdered two men, near Fort Laramie, last October, was found guilty, and sentenced by the Judge to be hanged on the 21st of April.

Hon. ISAAC V. VANDERPOEL died in Buffalo, yesterday, at the age of fifty-six years.

The Virginia Senate yesterday passed the House bill for the sale of the State interest in the Richmond and Petersburg Railroad for $600,000.

Fair and Unfair Opposition.

We may appeal to any fair-minded person to decide whether the opposition which the Republican Party and the Administration have lately encountered does not pass the legitimate bounds of political discussion. Everybody knows that a public man must make up his mind to be exposed to a good deal of sharp criticism. He is quite certain to offend a good many persons from the start, and some of these persons will in all probability be able to find access to the columns of a newspaper, and take good care to throw as much dirt as they possibly can. He will also have adversaries of a much viler kind, who will turn innocent actions into crimes, invent all kinds of lies about him, and spare no one connected with him—man, woman, or child. The necessity of facing this ordeal deters many men from entering public life at all, and drives a good many out of it when once they have entered it. Among instances of the latter kind is that of Vice-President COLFAX, a singularly honest and pure-minded man, faithful to his principles, and undoubtedly qualified to render substantial services to the country. He has announced his intention to withdraw from politics at the expiration of his present term of office, simply because of his disinclination to spend any more of his life in an atmosphere of slander and misrepresentation. Nor can this be construed into a sign of weakness. A man is bound, no doubt, to face fair criticism, but he is not bound to be forever the target of professional libelers, blackmailers, and all kinds of knaves. He owes, after all that can be said, something to his own sense of self-respect.

Now, of this kind of "opposition" Gen. GRANT has had rather more than his full share, as everybody will admit. Some people he provoked by refusing to place them in lucrative offices. They have ever since been at work upon his character, laying on a coat of black paint here and daubing it with pitch there, until the portrait has become a hideous caricature. It seems but the other day that the whole nation was trying to devise methods of testifying to Gen. GRANT its sense of the high services he had rendered. No new light has been thrown on those services since. They are as deserving of praise and gratitude now as ever they were. It is largely owing to Gen. GRANT that we are today a great people, and not, as the Democrats wished to make us, a collection of small Governments and "independent" States. Posterity will rank Gen. GRANT among the greatest commanders of his age—the most indomitable in adversity, the most magnanimous in victory. Yet it is this man, and within five years of the close of the war, that Senator SUMNER can dare to call incapable even as a soldier, utterly unworthy of respect or confidence. If Senator SUMNER had said that in May, 1865, what would have been the general verdict on his behavior? Yet that portion of Gen. GRANT's career to which Mr. SUMNER's criticism was addressed stands the same now as it did then; it goes down to history as it stood when the surrender of LEE, after a struggle of unparalleled intensity—for there has been nothing in the war between Germany and France at all comparable with it—brought peace once more to the country.

People are blessed with very short memories in these days—but is it creditable to us that Gen. GRANT's character should thus be exposed to every reckless calumny, and scarcely a protest raised against the outrage? Let it be remembered that he has done nothing whatever to deserve the obloquy now heaped upon his head by Republican papers like the Evening Post. When you sift the complaints about him they amount to this—he has not appointed some men to office, who were thought by their friends to be deserving of preferment; and he has appointed others who were thought to be undeserving. Was there ever a President of whom the same thing could not be said? Look on the other side of the account. The debt has been largely reduced; so has taxation; public credit stands high; the country is prosperous. When you reckon up Gen. GRANT's faults, why not place these great results of his Administration to his credit? Simply because it is almost impossible now-adays to obtain justice for a public man during his lifetime. There must always be an opposition; and in a newspaper age, opposition can speak with ten thousand voices, where sixty years ago it could find but one.

We have mentioned Gen. GRANT's name, but what we have said about him necessarily applies also to the Republican Party, for the two are linked pretty closely together, and must accordingly be so until March, 1873, to say the least. It is astounding to find Republicans persevering in a course which any man possessing a grain of sense must see is calculated to force the country into the abyss of Democracy. We are to change GRANT for HOFFMAN, and put TWEED and SWEENY with as much power over the nation as they have over New-York City—for that is what the election of a Democratic President with Tammany's money will amount to. There are really no leaders in the Democratic Party today one-fiftieth part so powerful as the Tammany gang. They will find a large part of the money for the next election, and they will not do so without exacting an equivalent for it. Republicans who want free trade, and Republicans who want to "take vengeance" for one grievance and another, would absolutely rather see a Democratic President elected than be deprived of their hobbies. Then they turn round and say, "are we not to criticise our party and the President?" We reply, criticise them by all means, but at present you are only trying to undermine them for the gratification of your own whims. We have no desire to see the President enjoying immunity from fair criticism. We simply think it an act of justice to weigh his actions impartially, and not beset his path in the spirit of assassins. The Republican Party will triumph with its next candidate, whoever he may be—or if it does not, farewell to that prosperity and security which we now enjoy and think so little of. The Evening Post says that the best men in the Democratic Party are coming to the front. Everybody knows this to be a misrepresentation. The great leaders are the Tammany adventurers who find almost undeviating support from the Post.

Harvard and Yale.

It must be very satisfactory to those who are interested in true culture to learn that at length there is a prospect of the formation of genuine universities in the country. Of high schools or colleges we have had plenty in every State. They have answered our purpose well. They have distributed moderate learning, so that a great many people have acquired a little of classics, mathematics, and the sciences. The harvest which has sprung from this general irrigation of knowledge has not been a very remarkable one, but it has been universal. Probably more human beings have a smattering of learning and an appreciation of culture in this country than in any other.

Nowhere in the world are there so many well-informed men in the common ranks of life. And for that reason, we believe, nowhere are there so many resources of enjoyment among people of small means as in America. This, it is to be hoped, will continue. But, as the number of the partly educated has increased, a great want has been felt. The highest culture has an audience and a liberal support here; but it has not the implements or the means of growth. Institutions are more and more needed where valuable libraries can be gathered, where the best machinery of education can be collected, where men of the highest culture congregate, and the atmosphere and surroundings are first of all intellectual. This can never be among the innumerable small colleges into which our institutions of learning are now broken. We must have, for the highest culture, large and wealthy universities. So far as one can judge from the present indications, there will be in the next quarter of a century but two of these in the United States at all worthy of the name—Yale and Harvard; and these have both entered with one another on a course of emulation calculated to develop the highest character of a university.

The recent enthusiastic meeting of Yale Alumni, which we chronicled as gathered by Mr. EVARTS' hospitality at his house, was an effort of the Puritan college to secure a stronger foothold among the New-York Alumni, with a view to future improvements and alterations, and increased facilities for a university course. Yet the peculiar disadvantages of Yale as compared with Harvard, were strikingly shown on that occasion, in the proposition to build a "New-York Hall," or "Dormitory," for eighty thousand dollars, for which the highest subscription was only one thousand dollars. Probably the whole amount pledged among the three hundred guests present was not ten thousand dollars, while Harvard has built and is building three Dormitories, costing severally one hundred thousand dollars, each of which is the gift of a single individual. The truth is that Yale, compared with Harvard, is falling behind in the career toward a general university. Harvard is cosmopolitan, and in sympathy with the great scientific advance of the age. Yale is Puritan, and dreads innovation, and would stamp everything with Connecticut theology, or would regard everything from that stand-point. HUXLEY or TYNDAL would find no place in Yale, but would be welcomed gladly in Harvard, on the broad ground that all truly scientific views ought to be heard in a university. Harvard has originated university courses of lectures for men and women, by distinguished scholars and scientists from every part of the country; she has inaugurated the elective system of studies after the opening year, and has wiped away the reproach of sectarianism by opening the College grounds to the erection of chapels by various sects, so that each Church can, if it choose, be represented in the University, thus keeping pace with the march of human thought. Having the tact to call in the Alumni into the management, and get rid of the State officials; she has gathered about her a multitude of enthusiastic and wealthy supporters, who are continually endowing some new branch, or supporting with their means some well-tried portion of the work.

It is true that the elective system is as yet only an experiment, the "University lectures" may be a failure, and many of the new enterprises may end in disaster; still there are movement, life, and an effort to attain an ideal of a university. Activity attracts activity; men support what has strength, so that now, with some thousand students, and the first names in American literature and science on its Professors' roll, Harvard seems to be approaching more nearly the ideal of an American university than any other institution. Yale, on the other hand, has not much modified her system. The voluntary plan has not been much enlarged; the Alumni are still rather ornamental than active participants in her management; the State Senators and Congregational ministers still figure as her principal directors, and in the academic department there is no evidence of a palpable progress. The effect of all this and perhaps of a certain Puritan stiffness in the College, is that she attracts no enthusiasm among her Alumni; and, considering the wealth of many of her graduates, she receives but small endowments. The only department in which she keeps up with the age is her "Scientific School," which enjoys now a just pre-eminence, and is not surpassed in the United States. There is, too, a certain solidity in the Yale training, and a decided moral influence upon the students, which compare favorably with anything at Harvard. A fatal mistake, we fear, has been made in not removing the College buildings outside of the city, as the impression is spreading that the present site is unhealthy. Of the two Colleges, Harvard has as yet come much nearer to the ideal of an American university, while Yale, we suspect, will with difficulty get beyond the traditions of a Connecticut college.

Stranger than Fiction.

Readers of Miss BRADDON's lurid fiction, Henry Dunbar, will remember that it turns on what seems to be the extravagant hypothesis, that one man may murder another, assume his name and identity, enter into possession of his estate, and be unsuspectingly received by his family and the world at large for the individual he personates. This is so glaring an improbability as to tax the faith of the most credulous of novel-lovers. Nevertheless, in all its essential features, Miss BRADDON's startling invention has been realized by a recent remarkable case in Chicago. The details of this curious and successful deception show so much perverted ingenuity and readiness of resource, as to entitle it to take rank among celebrated crimes.

As the story is now revealed, it begins with the arrival in New-York of one GUMBLETON, an Irishman of good family, in the Spring of 1870. With him he brought a letter of credit for £1,600, which he sold soon after his arrival to a New-York banking-house for a little less than $9,000. He then went to Baltimore where he made the acquaintance of a young German, named ALFRED ZIEGENMEYER, with whom he soon became intimate. Together the two friends, in November of last year, traveled to Chicago, where GUMBLETON placed on deposit in the National Bank of Commerce the sum of $900. Soon after, accompanied by ZIEGENMEYER, he shipped two boxes containing clothing to Manhattan, Kansas. From that time nothing definite appears to be known of him, until on the 2d of January of the present year his dead body was found in the lake, with a rope around his neck, and showing other indications of violence. Ever since that date the detectives have been untiring in their efforts to unravel the mystery, which have at last culminated in fixing the crime on ZIEGENMEYER and causing his arrest at Bremen, where he is now held awaiting a requisition from Washington. If the police theory of his movements subsequent to the murder is entirely correct, it is necessary to credit him with surprising coolness and cunning in villainy.

Assuming the detective version to be true, it appears that ZIEGENMEYER, immediately after the murder, presented himself at the bank with GUMBLETON's certificate of deposit, and stated that he was his victim's partner, and that GUMBLETON had gone to New-York, leaving him full authority to draw the $900. The bank refused to deliver the money without the owner's indorsement. This ZIEGENMEYER promised to get from New-York, and after an interval of six days for that pretended object, returned with a forged indorsement, which secured the money. This was, apparently, his last appearance in the character of ZIEGENMEYER. From that time forth he adopted the name and identity of the murdered man. Indeed, at his lodgings he was already known as GUMBLETON, although the two had lived there together under their proper names from the 16th to the 19th of November, when GUMBLETON disappeared; moreover, in personal appearance the two men were as unlike as can well be conceived, GUMBLETON being a man of forty-five, of about the middle height, with dark complexion, black hair and beard, and an Irishman, while ZIEGENMEYER was but twenty-one, tall, light, fair-haired and beardless, and a German, speaking English only imperfectly. That under these circumstances the deception could have been successfully carried out seems only less wonderful than the audacity which inspired it.

As GUMBLETON, ZIEGENMEYER then procured the return of the boxes sent to Kansas, which he at once sold, and turned his attention to the great prize, the eight thousand and odd dollars in New-York. To obtain this, he forged to the banking-house with whom the money was deposited a letter so skillfully executed as to satisfy them that it was the genuine GUMBLETON's handwriting. The balance was promptly forwarded to ZIEGENMEYER in a draft on Chicago. There still remained the difficulty of identification, and the trick by which this was surmounted is not the least ingenious in this singular record of rascally astuteness. The pretended GUMBLETON entered into negotiations to buy a farm, but when the time came to close the sale he had no money but his draft, which he could not cash. The anxious seller took the bait, and obligingly identified him at his own bank, and even went so far as to add his own indorsement to the draft. The bank officials, to be quite secure, wrote to the New-York house, and were assured there that everything was right. So the draft was paid, but the farm was not bought, and within a day or two afterward, on the first of December, Mr. ZIEGENMEYER-GUMBLETON vanished from Chicago, to be no more heard of until his arrest in Bremen on the charge of murder.

Regarding all the circumstances of this elaborate villainy so carefully planned and so skillfully executed, it may be doubted if anything in sensational fiction approaches it in romantic improbability. Yet the facts seem to be undeniable, and they are presented on the respectable authority of a well-known Chicago journal.

The Board of Health on its Defense.

The City Sanitary Inspector has at length ventured on a defense of the Board of Health against the charges that have been made with reference to its treatment of small-pox cases. How exceedingly lame the case of the defendants is, may be presumed from the fact that they have only broken their steadily-maintained silence when some of the grossest of the abuses complained of are being remedied. The ambulances used for the conveyance of patients were complained of—two new ones were yesterday ordered to be supplied. The barbarities of the steam-boat passage to the small-pox hospital were matter of public comment—a new steamer has been fitted up in which "there will be constant medical attendance, and nurses who will have no other duty but the care of the sick." The wretched insufficiency of the existing accommodation for small-pox patients has been frequently pointed out in these columns—a new wing is in course of completion, which will accommodate another hundred beds. For this last provision the Commissioners of Charities and Correction are held responsible, and to them may be accorded any credit due to its being supplied. In short, Dr. MORRIS' case amounts to this: "statements have recently appeared in the newspapers," which would be untrue if repeated today, but were perfectly correct when made. Here his defense such as it is, begins and ends.

It is worse than puerile for the Sanitary Inspector to attempt to shift the responsibility of creating public distrust and alarm from the shoulders of the Board to those of public journals. Their measures of reform, tardily taken as they have been, involve a confession that their arrangements at the beginning of the present outbreak were shamefully insufficient. That their arrangements are even now what they should be, must be proved to public satisfaction before they or their organs can complain of the public hesitation to confide in their tender mercies. The rate of mortality in the hospital on Blackwell Island could hardly have been exceeded if its patients had been located in the filthy purlieus of the Five Points. This must be remedied as the first evidence of improvement. The Commissioners of Charities may be directly responsible for this. It is none the less incumbent on the Board of Health to satisfy themselves and the public that the accommodation and administration of the small-pox hospital is such as to invite public confidence, instead of destroying it.

A Brooklyn Tax Reformer.

The recent investigations which have been made into the expenditures of the Brooklyn Board of Supervisors have brought to light some curious facts. Attention was first turned to the amounts paid for articles supplied to the County Jail, and these were found to be so extravagant—the sum being in some cases three or four times the market value of the goods—that it was concluded to institute a general search for overcharges, and the result has fully shown the necessity for such an examination. When the accounts of the Printing and Stationery Committee were inquired into, the prices charged for the work were in several instances found to be four or five times greater than the ordinary rates, especially where the printing had been done in the job office of the Eagle newspaper. This discovery was the more surprising, because ever since the necessity of tax reform in Brooklyn became evident, the Eagle has proclaimed itself a strenuous advocate of economy in municipal expenditure, and attempted to show a variety of methods by way of bringing about retrenchment. Following the injunction to philanthropists, however, not to let the right hand know what the left hand was doing, the right hand of the Eagle was indicting "editorials" on economy, while both hands of the business manager were plunged into the public purse. The way in which the Eagle carried on business with the Supervisors may be seen from some of the items in its bill. For poll lists the market price of which is twenty-five cents a copy, the Eagle charged $1 20; for 776 statements, worth $65, it charges $202, and for subpoenas, worth $5 50 per thousand, $12 50. The entire bill was $4,009, made up of such items as the above.

The Eagle's reply to these accusations is amusing, to say the least of it. After the unimpeachable evidence of two or three well-known printers, it would be impossible to explain away the charges, and it does not attempt to do anything of the kind, but lays all the blame on its agent. It claims to have been in utter ignorance of the manner in which this agent was charging for the public printing; and because the paper has talked of economy, and has criticised the actions of the Board of Supervisors, the editor argues that it is impossible for it to have been in league with the Supervisors to defraud the City. It blusters about its "integrity" and "honor," and says that it has done so much to check political jobbery that the present investigation is part of an effort to lessen its influence with the general public. The weak point about the Eagle's talk is that, although it acknowledges that the city has been overcharged by its printing establishment, it is very careful not to say a word about restitution. It claims to be a prosperous newspaper, but prefers to allow the charge of having defrauded the City remain against it unpalliated by an offer to refund the amount improperly obtained. It will not mend matters to discharge its agent, as the Eagle hints it may do, while retaining the money which it acknowledges was not lawfully its own. Until the Eagle disgorges the money paid by the city, which, according to its own admission, it never earned, it must stand forward as an acknowledged agent of corruption.

If the Eagle were really in earnest, as it pretended to be in its economical preachments, before these overcharges were discovered, it would not now be so much disturbed over the thought of losing an influence which it never possessed. The Democratic Party, of which the Eagle is the organ, is responsible for the high rate of taxation in that city. Its Democratic officials have largely increased the salaries of the City Judges, although there are several more now than there were two years ago to perform the same work, for which they were liberally paid. The water rates are to be increased by the Democrats, who have charge of the Water Department; a large appropriation is asked by the Fire Commissioners; and about the only projected increase of expenditure which has not gone through is the proposed increase of policemen's salaries—a result to which the Eagle in no way contributed. Let the Eagle refund its ill-gotten gains from the public printing, and do other works meet for repentance, before it publishes any more homilies on the subject of economical government.

MINOR TOPICS.

After a desultory discussion extending over five days, the Senate has finally made up its mind on the legislation it will undertake during the present session. This has been limited to action upon the Deficiency Appropriation bill, the concurrent resolution for a joint committee of investigation into affairs in the South, and the remedial measures for the benefit of loyal citizens in North Carolina and other States which may be prepared by the Judiciary Committee, in response to the resolution introduced by Mr. SHERMAN. Every attempt to get the revenue resolutions sent from the House included in the business of the session has proved fruitless. So far as the consideration of the tea and coffee duties is concerned, this is hardly to be regretted. A change so sweeping as their repeal could only receive the mature discussion it demanded by a long extension of a session which all parties are desirous to see closed. But the refusal to take up coal and salt admits of no such justification. Discussion on these points has practically ceased outside of the Senate, and there can be but one opinion of the attitude of the people with regard to them. The Senate, in protecting monopolies so costly to the nation and so unprofitable to the Government, places itself at variance with the almost united public opinion of the country. The motion to include the consideration of the repeal of the income tax in the programme of the session was lost by the casting vote of the Vice-President.

People fond of generalizing may find in the snub administered to the Irish exiles by the Fenian Convention, a fresh illustration of the wonderful Celtic talent for quarreling. It has lately been said that no Frenchman can bear the presence of a man who differs from himself. The remark seems to apply with almost equal force to the cognate race of Irishmen. The exiles who were lately welcomed with enthusiasm so exuberant have, it appears, presumed upon their eminence so far as to constitute themselves into something called a Directory—intended, probably, to have the general superintendence of all the developments of Irish patriotism on this continent. As the aspirations of the "Directory" extend to securing the control of the purse of the Brotherhood, the leaders of this harmonious combination are naturally very irate. The Fenian organization is, according to Mr. JOHN BAVAGE, a representative body, and, therefore, evidently considers itself only responsible to the ignorant servant-girls and laborers, who keep it in funds, for the money it absorbs to so little purpose. If the exiles have any old-fashioned notions in their heads about the auditing of accounts, corporate honesty, or any such exploded ideas, the sooner they get rid of them the better. A fellow-countryman, by the name of CONNOLLY, can give them some valuable hints on that subject which may save them much future annoyance.

The New-Jersey Legislature has resolved upon a serious attempt to prohibit the manufacture and sale of adulterated liquors. It is to be hoped that the working of this bill will be such as to encourage other States to make a similar experiment. Preventive legislation in dealing with drunkenness and its train has been hopelessly abandoned, but it is none the less incumbent on the law-making power to provide against the perils of pretty rapid poisoning being added to those of intoxication. Whether alcohol itself comes under the category of poisons is too much a disputed question to admit the administration of a law against adulteration. It is perfectly ungentlemanlike that it is frequently sophisticated with ingredients that tend very materially to shorten the life, and debase the constitution of the drinker. Apart from its social aspect, adulteration of liquors is a trade fraud, and ranks in common with all other conspicuous adulterations, to be distinctly defined as criminal.

When the Baptists took the fatal gift from the hands of TWEED and his friends, we warned them that their act would be a source of regret to all who were honestly opposing sectarian grants, on broad grounds of principle. It would be easy, "Now can you object to our paying millions to one particular sect, when even the Baptists are willing to take all they can get?" The principle in both cases is the same." Some Baptists thought we were right, and some thought we were wrong. Last night the Supreme decided the question by taking the very line we predicted. "The Times is again denouncing the appropriation of public moneys for sectarian purposes, holding the Catholics especially up for condemnation. How about the Baptists?" We must leave the Baptists to say "how it is about" them.

Some of our contemporaries are amused at the enterprise which the World displayed yesterday, and well they may be. The British proclivities of the World are well known—it even said the other day that it despaired of hearing of the Tennessee again, merely because she was an American ship. Had she been a British vessel, its mind would have been quite at ease. But who could have thought that it would have devoted nine mortal columns to an account of a marriage between a British Princess and a Lord—to say nothing of a column of second-hand Jobsonnalism in praise of the said Lord, about whom it published an indecent slander the other day? The great beauty of the World's report of the marriage is that it came by cable without anybody connected with the cable knowing it. There is no expense involved in getting this sort of cable news. You put a man down before a stiff glass of grog in New-York City, and he writes you "cable news" from any part of the world by the ward. During the war some very fine exploits of this kind were achieved by the World. It bought McMANUS and EGANAUX together, killed off MOUTRIE; made German arming fly like chaff before the wind, and wound up the campaign to the entire satisfaction of the French people. But its feat yesterday surpasses any of these efforts, for it proves that the telegraph is all moonshine, and that by inventing your news you can at once get it cheaply, and doctor it to suit your taste. Perhaps this was to be the great "journalistic discovery," so long foretold.

Mr. CHEAMER has got Controller CONNOLLY's little bill for consolidating the public debt of this City, passed by the Senate on a strict party vote. As the Senator from Orange has at length been brought into the Tammany traces again, there need be no further delay in pushing through the various spoliation schemes that still await formal indorsement. Senator CHEAMER made the highly edifying confession that it was very difficult to ascertain what the actual debt of the City was—and that the measure he had introduced was designed to allay the apprehensions of capitalists regarding the indefinite amount of our City obligations. It may be opportunely suggested that if the faith of investors in New-York City bonds is to be increased, it is highly desirable that some little information should be afforded as to how the money is spent, as well as the total amount of our obligation. The Ring will want a deal of money for the multifarious schemes of profit and plunder lately agreed on or still pending. If the Controller spares his consolidation scheme as a general cloaking of his past record, duly whitewashed by the Astor Committee, he may still find himself wonderfully disappointed in the efficacy for either its real or avowed purpose.

In the days when the German Empire called itself Holy and Roman, none of royal lineage were proud to be enrolled among its Princes. The first princely creation of Emperor WILLIAM is Count BISMARCK—a statesman who, under the Carlyleian code, has an unquestionable right to boast of a natural patent of royalty. It was fitting that the ablest man of United Germany should be the first of her honorary Princes. "Blood and Iron" have had their share in cementing the edifice, and the great apostle of these auxiliaries of civilization fits well into the feudal niche prepared for him.

The policy of President THIERS has been simply one of awaiting upon events, and, judging from the latest indications, events seem to have favored him. Neither Lyons, Bordeaux nor Marseilles have followed the example of Paris, and the northern manufacturing towns, in common with the rest of France, have decidedly disapproved of it. Meanwhile, the insurgents appear to have occupied Mont Valerien in addition to the positions fortified inside the City. The great question for Paris and for France is, will the rapidly returning inmates of the German military prisons attack the insurgent Nationals, or will they on coming to close quarters, fraternize with them? Without the support of the regular army, the revolt will collapse of itself; with it, there will be chaos again, and the prize to the strongest.

Fast Day in Connecticut—Gov. English's Proclamation.

In compliance with the religious sentiment of our people, as well as in recognition of our dependence upon Almighty God, I do hereby appoint Friday, the 7th day of April next, to be observed as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer.

And I invite the people of every religious denomination in the State to abstain on that day from all secular employments, and, assembling in their accustomed places of Divine worship, devoutly to make supplication unto the Lord our God, that he will not deal with us after our sins, nor reward us according to our iniquities, but graciously remember us in the abundance of His loving kindness and tender mercies. And let us so sanctify unto ourselves a fast, and so walk in the light of the Divine teaching, that our hearts may confidently exclaim with the Psalmist, "As far as the East is from the West, so far hath He removed transgressions from us."

Given under my hand and the seal of the State, at New-Haven, this twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one, and of the Independence of the United States the ninety-5th.

ALBANY.

A Contingency in Which the Erie Repeal Bill May Pass.

Progress of the Tax Levy Scheme. Barrel—Report of the New-York Belt Consolidation Bill—An Important Question: Is the Election Act of Congress to be Resisted or Evaded?—Arguments on Erie Classification.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Wednesday, March 22, 1871.

It is definitely settled that the Assembly Railroad Committee, which through its Chairman, Mr. FLAGG, promised on Monday night to make its report on the Erie bill to-morrow or Friday, will report adversely to the passage of the bill. There will be a minority report, however, signed by the two Republicans on the Committee—Messrs. LITTLEJOHN and BARNES, and one Democrat—Mr. WEED, which will favor the bill and recommend the repeal of the Erie Classification act. It is thought that an attempt will be made to adopt the majority report under the gag of the previous question, on the Carey-Brumbly report was carried. If there is a full attendance, however, of members of both parties, and the Republicans vote together, as they did the other day, this cannot be done. Two Democrats, besides Mr. WEED, voted on that occasion with the Republicans and against the Erie Ring, and if they vote the same way next time, and no Republican shirks the vote, the minority report can be adopted. FLAGG will doubtless watch his opportunity to spring the report upon the House at an unexpected moment, when he discovers several absentees among the Republicans, and it behooves them to be on the lookout for such a movement, and remain on the floor during the session.

GRAHAM SURRENDERED.

The gentlemen were right and your correspondent was wrong: Senator GRAHAM's motives for delaying the passage of the Ring Tax Levy bill do not appear to have been based upon the adamantine rock of principle which your correspondent, with a labored effort to avoid irony, has heretofore represented. They must have had an entirely different basis, and what that basis was may be safely left to conjecture. Suffice it to say that the Senator is now in favor of the bill, and will not turn up missing hereafter when his vote is wanted to secure its passage. The bill would have been brought up at the session this forenoon had not so much valuable time been wasted in the discussion of a two-penny canal claim bill. It will be forthcoming this evening, if the Viaduct Railroad project, which is made the special order, is disposed of in time, and if not, then to-morrow morning. The seventeen Democratic Senators are all here now, and, so far as known, none of them are on a "strike" in reference to this bill. Efforts are still being made by those pretending to represent the Citizens' Association, to get one or two Republican Senators to vote for the bill, and SAMPO has sent up two or three of his agents (fearing to come himself) to use their influence to that end; but they will all go back with lengthened faces in their ears, and if they make true reports to their employer, he will have no further difficulty in determining his status with Republican members of the Legislature.

CONSOLIDATING THE CITY DEBT.

CREAMER's bill to consolidate the debt of the City of New-York came up on its final passage near the close of the session this morning, and after failing to pass, through the temporary absence of a Democratic Senator, was reconsidered and carried by a strict party vote. In explanation of the bill, CREAMER said it was introduced at the request of the Controller, and was designed solely to consolidate the various obligations of the City, represented by the Croton water stock, the Central Park stock, the Court-house stock, &c., &c., into a single debt, represented by one loan. At present he said it was very difficult to ascertain what the actual debt of the City was, and apprehensions were thereby excited among capitalists. He forgot to state that when the Controller needed a whitewashing report last Fall, he found no difficulty in ascertaining what the debt of the City was, and explaining it all to half a dozen men in a few minutes. The precise object aimed at in this consolidation bill is not apparent to outsiders, but it is believed here to be designed to cover up a condition of things in Mr. CONNOLLY's office, and obliterate a past record in the matter of issuing City bonds, which it would be dangerous for the Ring to have exposed to the public eye. Believing this the Republican Senators deemed it the safest way to vote against the bill, which they all did. CONNOLLY, SWEENY and the rest of the "Ring" are here, and have been in constant attendance at Albany during the last two weeks. It is said that they propose to get through all the legislation at this session which will be necessary to establish their absolute and perpetual dominion over the City of New-York, and to enable them to cover up, so far as possible, the first frauds of which they have been guilty. TWEED does not intend to come back to the Senate again, and his aim is to get things so fixed in his bailiwick that he will be under no necessity hereafter of applying to the Legislature for favors. With the passage of the Tax Levy scheme, the consolidation of the City debt, the Croton water job, and a few other projects now on the file of the Senate, the "Ring" consider that they will be "masters of the situation" in New-York for several years to come, and will be able to snap their fingers at Albany legislation.

AMENDING THE EXCISE LAW.

Several bills have been introduced during the session, mostly by New-York members, to remove some of the restrictions placed upon the sale of liquor by the Excise Bureau. From these various bills the Judiciary Committee concluded in framing one which it was thought might stand some chance of passage. Among other things, the bill repeals the provision of the present law requiring applicants for license to sell liquor to obtain the indorsement of twenty freeholders of the town or ward in which the purpose to carry on business. The bill came up on its first passage in the Assembly this morning, and after strenuous efforts on both sides to obtain votes for or against it, was lost for want of the necessary vote—ayes 62, nays 64. Mr. FIELDS moved a reconsideration, which was carried, and he said he hoped his Democratic friends who had voted with the Republicans against the bill would find time before it was called up again to ascertain what constituted a Democratic measure. The Tax Levy Over Again—Senator Murphy still Absent—Shall the Election Law be Evaded or Resisted?—An Anxious Caucus—Road and Mortgage Taxation.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, March 22.—The Senate this evening took up the Viaduct Railroad bill, being the special order, and after a brief discussion ordered it to a third reading by a vote of 21 to 5. Owing to the absence of Mr. MURPHY, who is unwell, the Tax Levy bill was not called from the table, and no further business was transacted.

EVADING THE ELECTION LAW.

After the adjournment a caucus of Democratic Senators was held in the Senate Chamber, and continued in session nearly two hours. There was a full attendance, with the exception of Mr. MURPHY. The subject under consideration was Mr. HARDENBURGH's bill to change the day of holding the State election in order to evade the Congressional law for the prevention of fraud. As stated in my dispatch yesterday, there is a great disagreement among the leaders of the Democracy with regard to the propriety of passing this bill, which revealed itself in a long and excited discussion at the caucus. The New-York Democrats, under the lead of SWEENY, wish to ignore the law of Congress, and resist it by force; but Mr. HARDENBURGH, who is the ablest Democratic lawyer in the Senate, has sense enough to see the folly of questioning the right of Congress to pass the law, and the still greater folly, not to say stupidity, of attempting to resist it. Other Senators are of opinion that they would lose votes by imposing upon the people the expense and loss of time of an additional election, merely for the purpose of evading a law which, in spite of the misrepresentations of demagogues, the mass of the people know to be intended solely to secure an honest election. No result was arrived at in the caucus, and an adjournment was had till Tuesday evening next. TWEED strongly opposed the bill, and it is said that if a vote had been taken, eleven out of the sixteen Senators present would have gone with the "Boss."

BONDS AND MORTGAGES.

The evening session of the Assembly was consumed in the discussion of Mr. BOCK's bill to exempt bonds and mortgages from taxation. The bill was finally rejected by a vote of 71 to 31.

ERIE CLASSIFICATION.

Another Hearing Before the Assembly Railroad Committee—Mr. Vanderpoel's Argument for Erie—Mr. Tremaine's Reply—What the Erie Management Has to Show—An Opera-House, a Few Steam-Boats, and a Number of Admiral's Uniforms.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 22.—At a meeting of the Railroad Committee of the Assembly, this afternoon, to hear further argument on the bill to repeal the Erie Directors' Classification act, AARON J. VANDERPOEL, appearing for the Erie directors, said:

I will endeavor to comply with the request which the Chairman made to one of the gentlemen who previously addressed the Committee, by being very brief in my remarks, for it seems that the questions involved in the discussion of this bill are very narrow and very simple. I did not have the pleasure of hearing the counsel, who were urging the passage of this bill, now before the Committee, at the previous hearing, but I have read what at the time they were published in the daily papers, but these had no interest in the question, and not believing that I would be called upon to address you, merely glanced at them. I was a little amused at the course taken by the opposing counsel, in that they, instead of discussing the questions properly before this Committee, engaged in vituperation and abuse against the managers of the Erie Railway. Since this Classification act was passed in 1869, I have not discovered, nor found, any suggestions offered which ought to cause this Committee to reverse the action of the Legislature in that year. It was not pretended in the discussion before the Committee at that time, when that same subject was before the Railroad Committee, that there was any remarkable haste in the manner in which the bill was passed, or that its merits were not fully investigated at that time. I doubt if any bill had been introduced on which there was better opportunity for deliberation or presentation of objections. The bill was introduced March 17. It was reported March 26 to the Committee, and was reported on April 15. It was considered in Committee of the Whole on April 17, and passed on May 4, and was sent on the 6th to the Governor for his signature. The bill was signed by him on the 20th of May. Certainly ample time was allowed for any who had objections to the principle of the bill to offer them. There was no lack of newspaper discussion upon its merits, and it cannot be asserted that the question has not been sufficiently discussed during that time. The newspapers evidently must have arrested the attention of every objector to the bill, and from the 17th of March to the 20th of May was ample time for any stockholder to have made his objections to it. At that time there were very few English stockholders, and but a small amount of stock was held in that country. They did not then bargain and speculate in the stock. They had not then bought the stock at low prices. This bill was introduced originally by unanimous consent. The Railroad Committee recommended its passage, and more than two-thirds of the Assembly voted for it, while only one Senator voted against it. I need not refer to the message of the Governor on that subject. In that message, or rather upon the indorsement attached to the bill, he called attention to the fact that he objections had been presented against it except from two persons, although ample opportunity had been allowed for objections, and he had not received any remonstrances. Now what is there in the bill itself which is objectionable. The directors are empowered to classify themselves. By the bill itself they had the power to do so without consulting the stock-holders, save the directors referred the classification to the annual meeting of the stockholders in May and the stockholders approved of the act. These resolutions which I hold in my hand were published in the daily newspapers, and will be laid before the Committee. After the directors had been so commanded by the stockholders to do so, they made the classification. All the arrangements of the Company were modified accordingly. This action took place at the annual meeting, when there was ample opportunity for discussion, as ample notice had been given. I am not aware that there was a single dissenting voice. Whether there was or not, it was passed by the majority. It was the voice of a majority of the stockholders of the Erie Railroad Company assembled together at the annual meeting. If the voice of the stockholders can be expressed at any time, this is the proper time. On April 12, 1869, the stockholders were perfectly satisfied with this arrangement. What has occurred since? In that year the directors proceeded to classify themselves. Since that time the road has improved greatly; every portion of the public has been satisfied.

Mr. VANDERPOEL then handed in the resolutions of the stockholders, passed at the annual meeting on the 12th of April. Now, if these stockholders, who are now petitioning, at that time had any cause of complaint, the complaints should have been presented at the stockholders' meeting. If they failed to do that, why should they bother and annoy the Legislature with the complaints which should have been presented then?

Mr. FLAGG—I did not get the number of shares represented in the meeting on the 12th of April.

Mr. VANDERPOEL—I cannot state the number. The resolutions were passed nearly unanimously. I can tell you before I leave the city. Of course if those persons were present and had a vote of all their stockholders, the will of the majority must rule. The number of shares held by Mr. GOULD in the Erie Company is proportionally as high as that held by any man in any corporation in this country, as is shown by the statement made by Mr. BILLOU, which I submit to the Committee. Now no reason can be suggested why this bill should be repealed except reasons which are personal as against the Board of Directors. The moment the Committee allow reasons of that kind to influence their action, controversies will arise in three quarters of the corporations of the State. You will find them whenever the control of a corporation may be objectionable to one side and satisfactory to the other, and in every corporation you will find two parties. Here is one party claiming that the act passed is a just one, and another objecting to it and urging its repeal. The moment you listen to the complaints of a personal character you open the door for the admittance of numberless quarrels in every railroad corporation. But I apprehend that the question is one of principle. You have to do with the wishes of the public, and matters of public complaint in the management of the corporation, and not with the men who, for the time being, have control of the road. You are not to examine into the question of the control of the road, but to defend the interests of the public, and to examine into the relations of the road to the public. Has this management given the public better accommodations or is it censurable for management. The Legislature will note encourage this gambling in the stock market, which these men desire to engage in, by the influence they are endeavoring to obtain over Erie stock. The bill, which was passed in 1869, and which it is now sought to repeal, contains no new principle. It is the same principle embodied in organizations from the foundation of the Government until the present time. The Senators of the United States are classified in this form. From the time it was introduced into our State down to the present time I have no doubt that on examination of the statutes will disclose over five hundred laws establishing this principle. There are, I have no doubt, many more containing the principle of this Classification bill in the formation of companies of various kinds. This principle is essential to the permanency of large corporations which should be guided by experience. Look at the history of the Erie Railroad. Look at the road in the Spring of 1868 when it had been under the conduct of men elected at the annual elections. The road had become embarrassed and once sold out. There was but one short rail from the beginning to the end of the road, that was in a satisfactory condition. These facts are shown by the reports of men who had charge of the road before the present managers took charge of it. They paid dividends then, but what was the condition of the road? Was it a road that accommodated the public? In March, 1868, the iron rails were broken at all points, and passenger-trains were compelled to run at the lowest rate of speed. We have now a road which will satisfy the wants of the public. Now there is some permanency to its management. I do not conceive that the stockholders would turn out these men. If the Legislature is satisfied with the management of the road and the condition of the track and the condition of the cars, they ought not to interfere with the mere squabbles of the stock-jobbers. I have taken pains, and, with the permission of the Committee, will lay before them the statutes passed in England, which will exhibit the ill grace with which this petition comes from our friends in that country. In 1845 we find what is known as the consolidation act was passed, and the purpose of that act was to make a general act for the consolidation in one act certain provisions for the classification of officers in companies like the one now before this Committee. Prior to 1845 they had been in the habit of classifying their trustees, and the preamble of the act is laid before you, in which it is recited that it is expedient that this shall be authorized by the general act. The same principle that was adopted in the passage of the Erie bill was adopted at the time of the passage of this act adopted in Pennsylvania. It was adopted in Pennsylvania for the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad Company, and it prevented that road from passing into the grasping hand of the Pennsylvania Central road. We find this principle commended in the passage of acts in other States, as securing permanency and uniformity in the management of railroads.

Mr. VANDERPOOL, after citing several cases, then closed his remarks.

Hon. LYMAN TREMAINE then addressed the Committee. He professed himself pleased at the announcement of the Chairman of the Committee, that this meeting was to be the last one, and that the members of the Committee would arrive at some conclusion at its end. It was asserted, on a previous occasion, that many of the signatures to the petition for the repeal of the bill were fraudulent; but, on investigation, it was proved that the fraud was perpetrated without the knowledge of those most interested in the success of the petition. It was evidently done by the managers of the Erie Company, as affidavits had been presented showing that the frauds had been committed, when in fact the assailants fell into the ditch prepared by them for others. The stockholders discovered the fraud in time to prevent the fraudulent petitions from reaching the Assembly. This was done to raise a prejudice against the claim of the petitioners, and it signally failed of its object. The question for discussion is a very simple one. It is simply whether the control of property shall or shall not be with the owners of the property. Notwithstanding cases have apparently been cited of apparent precedents in the application of this principle, you will search in vain through the enactments of the Legislature of New-York which takes from the owners of stock the right to choose their own trustees. Who are these trustees? They are the agents of the stockholders, and the stockholders are the owners of the property. Control is an incident of possession of the property. Take it from the owner's control, and you might as well confiscate it. The charter here framed by the Legislature contained the fundamental principle whereby stockholders were permitted annually to choose their agents for the management of their property. That charter was a contract between whom? Between the State and the stockholders, and it cannot be vitiated, except under a contingency which will call for legislative interference. Here is a corporation representing $60,000,000 of property. The Legislature has to do with the question whether this immense fund is not being wasted. Power should be exercised to restore the true owners to the property which has been taken from them. It has been urged that there was a delay sufficient of the most serious consideration to be given, or that the interposition of objection between the time of the introduction of the bill and its adoption. There was not time for the English stockholders to take action, and no notification of the action was given to them. When the Governor says that the reason that he was induced to sign the bill was, that these stockholders had not remonstrated, that fact gives force to our remonstrance. These stockholders do not seek control of the Erie Railroad, but the control of their own property, and a franchise in proportion to the property they have represented. It is a wrong assertion, as has been asserted, that only the English stockholders are in this petition. Several millions of dollars here represented are in the hands of American citizens, who simply seek to vote. When the present managers of the Erie Road first took possession of the road its capital stock was $24,000,000. At present it is $60,000,000; here is $60,000,000 to be accounted for. The stock has gone down from seventy-five to twenty-five per cent. The casualties were as frequent as at present, as the records will show. This corporation has corrupted the Judiciary, destroyed the purity of the Bar, and brought reproach upon the name of American securities. There have been some indications that the bill will assume a partisan shape. It is to be hoped it will not. A learned gentleman has said "stealing" is not partisan, and it is hoped this will not be.

Mr. NELSON—What do you mean when you say that the Erie managers have corrupted the Courts?

Mr. TREMAINE replied, at some length, and with much feeling. He meant that they had, by shrewness, and by the use of every means, accomplished their ends.

Mr. NELSON—Do you mean to refer to Mr. FIELD, when you speak or their corrupting the Bar?

Mr. TREMAINE—I mentioned no names. I am not here to arraign Mr. FIELD. I have an old-fashioned way of speaking, which I learned when I was young, and I have not got over it yet—that of saying what I mean.

Mr. GRINNELL—You accepted a retainer once from the Erie Railroad Company.

In conclusion, Mr. TREMAINE stated that all the Erie management had to show for the money of their stockholders was an opera-house, a few steam-boats, and plenty of Admiral's uniforms. He was very apt to call a bad man by his right name, whether he was dressed in the garb of a vagabond or rode in the carriage of a king with a harlot by his side.

The Committee then went into Executive Session.

INSURANCE.

Hearing on the Insurance Bills Before the Senate Committee on Insurance—Another Hearing to Take Place.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 22.—At a meeting of the Senate Insurance Committee, this afternoon, C. T. DAVEY, of the Sun Mutual Association, addressed the Committee, chiefly on the inconsistency of one of the provisions of the Life Insurance bill, which required companies already chartered to make their deposits with the Superintendent of $250,000, whereas many of them organized upon a capital of $100,000.

Superintendent MILLER stated it was not intended to make this requirement, and that the provision should be prospective, and not refer to those companies which have already filed their charters.

The bill was amended so as to make the provision unmandatory.

Mr. MORGAN, of the North American Insurance Company, stated that a number of representatives in the insurance interest had been in consultation with the Superintendent of the Insurance Department, and they had gone over the bill, making such amendments as were satisfactory to them.

Superintendent MILLER said he had the bill here and would hand it over to the Committee, which was done, and the life insurance matter was laid aside.

The bill requiring more legible policies from marine insurance companies was then taken up, explained by Mr. MILLER, and met no opposition, was laid aside, after striking out the word "marine" and making it "fire and life."

The bill to put foreign insurance companies on a footing with home companies was taken up. Superintendent MILLER called attention to section 9, which provided that, where foreign companies have a deposit of $1,000,000 in the hands of their trustees, they are exempted from making any deposit with the Superintendent of Insurance. It had occurred to him, and he merely threw it out as a suggestion to the Committee, that all fire companies should be required to make a deposit of $100,000 with the Superintendent. If this were done, he submitted there would undoubtedly be cases where the parties insured would be just $100,000 better off than they are liable to be. If the ninth section of this bill was stricken out this point would be attained. The Committee made a note of the suggestion, and laid the bill aside.

The bill to amend the charter of the City Loan and Trust Company by increasing the number necessary for a quorum, and also its capital stock, was then taken up. Its objects were stated by a representative of the Company. It transpired that they wished to increase their capital stock to $1,000,000, but had not organized yet on $500,000, though chartered in 1868. The object of the Company is to loan money on life insurance policies.

The Committee agreed to have another hearing on this bill, and then adjourned, having no other bills.

The Five Points House of Industry—Help Wanted.

The Trustees of the Five Points House of Industry, No. 155 Worth-street, New-York, appeal to the friends of the poor for donations to enable them still to carry on the work which, for so many years, has been sustained at the Five Points. The past Winter has been a peculiary hard one for the poor, and the calls for help have exhausted the treasury of the Institution, leaving the House in debt. The general depression of business has forced many to ask for assistance who were never compelled to do so before, while scores have been unable to keep their families together, and have relied upon our support for their little ones. The House was never so full of children as at present, and applications for admittance are still numerous and urgent. More than 200 children are at the tables daily; 200 children are living in the House; nearly 25,000 meals were given last month. Beside supporting the family in the house, assistance is rendered to families and individuals outside. To carry on this work the Trustees depend largely upon the voluntary offerings of the charitable. The friends of the House of Industry have hitherto so liberally responded to their appeals for aid, and evinced by their cordial support such approval of their general management, that the Trustees confidently hope this appeal will not be made in vain. Contributions may be sent to the Treasurer's address, Mr. HUGH N. CAMP, No. 155 Worth-street. The Trustees are: Archibald Russell, President; Hugh N. Camp, Treasurer; George F. Betts, Secretary; Charles Ely, Marshall Lefferts, Frederick C. Foster, Morris K. Jesup, D. Lydig Suydam, C. H. Dabney, W. F. BARNARD is Superintendent.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theatrical.

"HORISON," AT THE OLYMPIC THEATRE.

Mr. DALY's new play has the merit of not only trying to depict something that really exists, but something that is not without national interest and significance. Frontier life, with its Arcadian romance and its frantic dissipation, its wild adventure and its vivid contrasts of civilization and barbarism, offers much that is available for the dramatic purpose; and it is conceivable that the treatment should be such as not only to amuse but to instruct. No country has ever had so extraordinary and continuous a field of illustration in this wise as the United States. Our people have pushed westward in a steadily advancing fringe that, through the golden discovery of Capt. SUTTER, has been confronted by a similar fringe from the East far sooner than the most sanguine observers of twenty-five years ago ever ventured to predict. The aborigines of the plains, thus caught, as it were, between two fires, are being "improved" with terrible swiftness from off the face of the earth. Nationalities of all sorts are meeting in the very heart of the continent. The greaser and the Chinaman, the Indian and the negro, the Irishman and the Anglo-Saxon, are thus brought together in heterogeneous association; and the refinements of a civilization rapidly becoming fastidious beyond precedent are mingled with the coarse usages of the desperado of the plains and the yet more groveling habits of the savage. That the histrionic capabilities of a situation like this are many and inviting is manifest. That they have not more generally been availed of is remarkable. It is certainly time that what BIERSTADT is doing for natural scenery, and BRET HARTE for fiction, should be at least attempted for the stage. Mr. DALY deserves credit, apart from the execution of his task, for grasping, and striving to illustrate with energy and liberality, some of the most striking traits of our country and age.

The name of "Horizon" is suggested, as we understand, by the far-off region in which most of its action is laid. The idea is poetic, but the use made of it is hardly, in any special sense, appropriate. The "horizon" does not pertain exclusively to the West. It belongs likewise to the East, the North and the South. However, this is no great matter, and is at least of inferior importance to the structure of the drama. To that structure it is proper to make some objections. The first act might, with advantage, be altogether dispensed with. There are, to be sure, precedents in dramas of similar character—like the "Green Bushes," for instance—of having the action now in the civilized, now in the uncivilized world. Contrast is gained by the process, no doubt, and of course at this day there is little use in standing up for the "unities." But there is nothing told in the first act of "Horizon" that could not be better told, and in fewer words, in the second. The dialogue is spun out until it becomes wearisome, and a prejudice is begotten unfavorable to the subsequent action. After the objectionable first act, the writing grows much more spirited and characteristic. It is not very strong or original, but it is lively and dramatic, and some of the situations are cleverly conceived. The rabble of "Rogue's Rest" is like the rabble of many new Western settlements, and there is no reason to assume that their proceedings are much exaggerated. Sundown Bower, Esq., is an amusing enough sketch, and is made the most of by one of the funniest of our comedians, Mr. FOX. John Loder, the gambler, is still better as a life-like copy of familiar originals, and his embodiment by Mr. MORTIMER is one of the ablest bits of realism we have ever seen on the stage. Wannamucka, the Indian—also exceedingly well acted by Mr. CHARLES WHEATLEIGH—is likewise an interesting personage, and by no means a bad specimen of drawing from nature. These figures—to which may be added the repulsive Wolf Van Dorp, to whom Mr. J. B. SHUBLEY does singular justice—are creditable to Mr. DALY's perception, and to his powers as a dramatist, and they go far to redeem some things which are commonplace and threadbare in device and expression that surround or accompany them.

The ladies of "Horizon," contrary to all rules of artistic gallantry, are not its happiest features. Miss AGNES ETHEL certainly endows with sweetness and attraction an old friend, under the name of "The White Flower of the Plains." She is, that is to say, the well-known young lady, who, being of affluent and lofty strain, turns up, through the caprice of fortune, an unkempt and artless daughter of the wilderness; who subdues all hearts, and—after being, as a matter of course, carried off by the Indians, whose chief deidolatres the White Lily of the Pale Faces as an ornament for his wigwam, and a suitable companion in his intervals of scalp-taking—is joyfully restored to peace, purity, happiness and station, as the close. Miss ADA HARLAND exerts herself to the utmost to enrich with vitality and meaning the somewhat shadowy and purposeless outline of Miss Columbia Bowes, and sings her song charmingly. Mrs. PRIOR speaks with her usual force and precision the speeches of Mrs. Van Dorp, and little JENNIE YEAMANS gets on very nicely with the little pappoose who became the spoil of the stranger. These and the merest taste of an Irish woman—well done as far as she goes by Mrs. YEAMANS—aided by a faint flavor of pretty daughter—also well realized by Miss FANNY BRAHE, substantially make up the female contributions to the text. There is, to be sure, an Indian "Princess," who naturally objects to the "White Flower of the Plains" occupying her wigwam, and who warbles with consequent satisfaction what is termed a "Monody" on the premature death of that flower. Ouaia does not, notwithstanding, succeed in making us wonder at the infidelity of the chivalrous Wannamucka, or—barring the immorality, of course—in making us regret it. But if the feminine element in "Horizon" is neither very potent nor very destinctive, the representatives of the other sex are various, and, in the instances named, exceedingly good as types of their classes. We have seen precisely such men as John Loder in precisely such places; and this applies to the words put in his mouth as well as to the capital manner in which Mr. MORTIMER delivers and illustrates them. Wolf Van Dorp is a truthful, if deplorably mournful, portraiture. Mr. FOX's part might have been stronger if Bowes had better defined objects, or if they were so delineated as to excite interest apart from the popularity of ex comico of the artist. Finally, we believe Mr. DALY deserves credit for a unique conception—admirably carried out, let us repeat, by Mr. WHEATLEIGH—in combining in Wannamucka humor and sentiment. We have had plenty of sentiment in figures like Meldmora and Conanchet; but there has been, we believe, no other stage American Indian who has added dry humor to his romance, his ferocity or his pathos.

The scenery and appointments of "Horizon" are all that can be desired. Mr. HAYES deserves to be warmly complimented on the products of his tasteful brush, and the management has been lavish in all matters of detail. The Indians of the play and the United States soldiers are more like real Indians and soldiers than any yet brought before us on the boards. For its "realism," in fact, "Horizon" bids fair to be indebted for not a little of its probable success. The panorama, the night attack, the thrilling tableaux, the tricks of the Indians, and the picturesque and thorough fashion in which all the stage business has been adjusted, might make the fortune of a worse play than "Horizon:" and when a play possesses, as this does, a good share of intrinsic merit, such efficient help should assure its prosperity. Viewed exclusively as a dramatic composition, "Horizon" will not, indeed, take high rank, nor, we imagine, did its author expect that it would. It is in the strict sense a melodrama, and it is a melodrama in the wider sense of depending upon stirring incident and high-colored climax rather than upon the artistic discrimination of people and manners. We consider, nevertheless, that the piece shows considerable imagination and humor, a good deal of tact and handiness in utilizing the resources of the stage, and a feeling for the poetic aspects of frontier life, that are worthy of sympathetic appreciation.

Musical.

NILSSON CONCERTS.

Miss NILSSON sang at Steinway Hall last evening, and with her the remainder of Mr. STRAKOSCH's admirable company was heard. The lady was in excellent voice, and the purity and power of her notes were never more conspicuous. The best programme which has been interpreted since the recent resumption of these concerts was also offered last evening, so that nothing was wanting to cause the entertainment to be most pleasantly remembered. Miss NILSSON's recital of "Ah! fors'è Lui" was full of that dramatic expressiveness, the absence of which, in future renderings by other singers, will make the air colorless and ineffective. Her finished execution of "Voi che Sapete," from "Le Nozze," was less generally appreciated, but the usual encore following and resulting in the singing of Miss NILSSON's accustomed Swedish song, was crowned by a second demand for a repeat. "Sur l'onda," from "Il Giuramento," an aria of the florid order, was superbly delivered by Miss CARY, whom a voice of delicious quality, unbroken evenness, and great strength, and a faultless method place in the topmost rank of living contraltos. The air from "Dinorah" was Miss CARY's second contribution to the bill, and "Kathleen Mavourneen" was had as an encore piece. M. VIEUXTEMPS played his "Introduction and Rondo." Signor VERGES sang "Largo al Factotum." Signor BRIGNOLI did not come forth as a soloist, the numbers not referred to above consisting of concerted pieces. The Miserere, from "Il Trovatore," was given as the final composition of the first part, and was called for again, when the tuneful work of the invisible chorus was recommenced with praiseworthy energy. To-night Miss NILSSON goes to Newark. Her reappearance here will be effected at the Saturday matinee.

BROOKLYN CHORAL UNION.

The third grand concert of the Brooklyn Choral Union will take place at the Academy of Music, in Brooklyn, this evening. Mr. E. B. DODWORTH will conduct, the principal compositions selected, consisting of MENDELSSOHN's "114th Psalm," and of "Lorelay,"—and solo performances will be supplied by Miss KELLOGG, Mrs. FRANKAU-HESS, and by Mr. JAMES M. WEMLI.

Meeting of the Methodist Conference.

The Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, yesterday, commenced its fifteenth session at the new Methodist Church, Morristown, N. J. The church edifice in which this session is being held is one of the finest in the State. It was commenced in 1867, under the pastorate of Rev. H. A. BOYNE, since elected to a professorship in Drew Theological Seminary, and nearly completed by his efforts. The building cost something over $150,000, nearly $100,000 of which was given by the late Gen. F. CHAR, one of New-Jersey's prominent Methodists.

The edifice is unique in appearance, being built of "sponge" stone, a kind of conglomerate bowlder found in the upper part of the State. The door-ways, windows and

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Business at the Exchange yesterday, March 22, was active, attendance large, bidding spirited, and the result of the day's transactions the best, thus far, of the week. As an unusual circumstance, it may be mentioned that all the property offered was disposed of, and the prices obtained, in the mass, highly satisfactory, the only piece of real estate not bringing its full value being a house and lot on Ninth-street, sold by E. H. LUDLOW & Co. The following is in detail a report of the sales effected:

ROBERTS & McGUIRE, at public auction, sold a plot of ground (4 lots) 92.8 by 100, located on the north-west corner of Lexington-avenue and Fifty-seventh-street, for $24,000; purchaser, C. H. DE ROM; also, at various Supreme Court sales, in foreclosure, under the direction of Messrs. D. P. INGRAHAM, Jr., and WM. EDMISTON, referees, property as follows, at the prices annexed: Three-story and basement brown-stone house and lot, No. 407 Lexington-avenue, north-east corner Fifty-sixth-street, lot 25.3 by 75, $22,150; purchaser, THOS. THORPE; similar house and lot adjoining, No. 419 Lexington-avenue, lot 20 by 75, $18,800; purchaser, CHARLES HUDSON; similar house and lot, No. 130 East Fifty-sixth-street, north side, in rear of above, lot 20 by 105.5, $16,000; purchaser, LOUIS SCHULMAN. Five mortgages foreclosed upon lots of ground, three of property amount to $[illegible]; three of property amount to $[illegible]; also, at private sale, Nos. 215 West Twenty-fourth-street, south side, between Seventh and Eighth avenues; lot 25.4x98.9, $16,625, including $9,000 amount of mortgage foreclosed; purchaser, BANK BUNTING. Plot of ground (six lots) north-east corner Second-avenue and Ninety-third-street—plot, 100.8x150, $16,200, including mortgage of $6,200; purchaser, TERENCE FARLEY.

T. R. LUDLOW & Co., MORRIS WILKINS, auctioneer, at public auction, disposed of the extensive four-story and basement brown-stone front house and lot known as No. 27 East Fifty-second-street, between Fifth and Sixth avs., lot 25.4 by 99.5; sold for $52,500 to GEO. KRAMER. Also, the three-story and basement frame house and lot known as No. 36 West Fifty-fourth-street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues; sold for $19,300 to J. R. BURTON; the lot is 25 by 100.5, and the house stands on the rear of the lot. Also, at the same place, by order of the United States District Court, under the direction of John S. BUCHER, Esq., receiver, Messrs. LUDLOW & Co. sold the four-story brick building and lot known as No. 120 Canal-street, south side, between the Bowery and Chrystie-street, to JOHN LEMAIRE for $19,150.

WM. KENNELLY, at public auction, sold the premises known as No. 328 West Forty-eighth-street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues, embracing a three-story brick house, and lot, both 18.9 feet 8 inches front—rear of lot irregular—for $14,000; purchaser, H. WILSON.

D. M. SEAMAN, at a legal sale, by order of the Supreme Court, under the direction of John T. Lockwood, Esq., referee, disposed of a plot of ground 25 by 75, with the buildings thereon, located on the south side of Rivington-street, west of and near Tompkins-street, for $7,300, so ELIZABETH WHITE and GEORGE THOMPSON, ex-owners and plaintiffs in the action in question. Mr. SEAMAN also sold a desirable residence at Mount Haven, in Westchester County, for $14,500, to Gil. Hatfield. The details of the foreclosure of the property embraced in the last-named sale will be found below.

A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co., at public auction, sold an undivided third interest in a trace of valuable land, comprising nearly 20 acres, located at Pendham Ridge, near Kingsbridge, in Westchester County, in the immediate vicinity of Jerome Park; the purchaser, PHILIP H. YARIS, purchased the property at the rate of $3,300 per acre, for the interest. No other sales were made. In our report, yesterday, of the sale made by Mr. BLEECKER, at the Exchange, on Tuesday, it was stated that a lot on Fifty-Eighth-street, near Tenth-avenue, was sold to P. H. FROST for $7,600, and that for the Bethune-street property offered, no bids were made. The report was erroneous, and the facts should be transposed. For the unimproved lot no bids were received, while the premises No. 12 Bethune-street, 147 feet west of Greenwich-street, embracing a two-story and attic brick house and lot, the latter 18.11½by 60, was sold to Mr. FROST for the sum named. The mistake occurred in that the clerk of the auctioneer recorded the transaction on the wrong diagram of sale,—the one from which our report was made up showing a different property.

On Tuesday, at Rahway, N. J., A. D. MELLICK, Jr. & BROTHER sold at public auction a cottage house and lot, the latter 38 by 160, for $1,500, to SAMUEL S. RENO. The attendance at the sale was good.

Today at the Exchange the most important sale announced is that to be conducted by MULLIGAN, WILKINS & Co., at which extremely valuable property belonging to the estate of the late BENJ. MORRIS WILKINS, deceased, will be disposed of. One hundred and two lots in all will be sold, embracing two entire blocks between Seventh and St. Nicholas avenues, one of which fronts on Central Park. The lots are respectively located as follows: On St. Nicholas-avenue—Nos. 1 and 2, 100.4x100 feet each, lots 3 and 4, between Tenth and One Hundred and Twelfth streets; on Seventh-avenue—16 lots east side, being the entire fronts between One Hundred and Tenth and One Hundred and Twelfth streets; on One Hundred and Tenth-street—36 lots on north side, between Seventh and Tenth streets, fronting the Central Park; on One Hundred and Eleventh-street—36 lots between Seventh avenue and St. Nicholas avenue; on One Hundred and Twelfth-street—12 lots south side, between St. Nicholas and Seventh avenues. The sale above proposed is one of special interest and importance to owners of uptown real estate, and should be largely attended, while, in addition, valuable City property, as also advertised to be sold by A. J. BLEECKER, SON & Co., and by E. H. LUDLOW & Co.

Private sales of property are reported to have been recently effected as follows, at the prices named:

By WM. H. RATHOR, No. 5½ Pine-street, plot of ground south side of Fifty-ninth-street, between Third-avenue and Irving-place, with old brick church thereon, $40,000. Three full lots, on the east side of Fifth-avenue, between Seventy-third and Seventy-fourth streets, are also reported to have been sold on Tuesday for $120,000.

By JOHN MCCLAVE, No. 44 Pine-street, forty acres of land near Rutherford Park, on the Passaic River, N. J., sold at the rate of $1,000 per acre—$40,000.

As will be observed by a careful study of the statement here submitted, the securities held by this Company, while more than sufficient to meet all the liabilities, are of the most solid character, and such as may at any time be converted into cash without shortage.
The solvency of a company ascertained, the question becomes one of choice as to the rights the policy-holder enjoys under the charter, the integrity of the Company's administration, the amount of talent displayed, the character of the plans submitted, and the probabilities in favor of satisfactory dividends.
The WIDOWS' AND ORPHANS' BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, organized and incorporated under the rigorous and supervisory laws of New-York, with a guarantee capital of two hundred thousand dollars paid up and invested in United States Stocks, one hundred thousand dollars of which are deposited with the State for the security of policy-holders; with a perpetual charter, which secures to its policy-holders all the surplus and savings of the business, on the mutual plan; with a Board of Trustees and Directors identified with the remarkable progress of Life Insurance in this country, and profoundly versed in all those practical details which render success certain; with officers of acknowledged worth and ability; with a sense of place in harmony with the most correct theories, and adapted to all the wants of the insuring public, offers at its principal office or through the medium of its agents:
A Life Policy on the most advantageous terms consistent with equal justice and security.
Their Bond of investment, or Endowment Policy, payable at the close of any stipulated year, or at death, if sooner occurring.
Their Guardianship, varying in form with different ends, either securing an annuity through life, or contingent payments through a portion of it.

The testimony in the case in which GEO. WASHINGTON BOWEN claims the Jumel estate, on the ground that he is the son of Mme. JUMEL, was continued, yesterday, before the referee.

The cross-examination of Mrs. ANN ELIZA VANDERVOORT was resumed. She testified: I have seen Mrs. WM. JONES' daughter, the one who married NELSON CHASE, on Broadway, with Mme. JUMEL; since the death of Mme. JUMEL, one of the children of this Mrs. JONES, WM. R. JONES, came to my house to see GEORGE WASHINGTON BOWEN; I saw MARY BOWEN a good many times before she was married to NELSON CHASE; I saw her with Mme. JUMEL; FRANK BOWEN'S maiden name was KELLY; she left Providence before I was born, and I never saw her; I never heard that she was back in Providence again after DAVID BALLOU carried her off with JONATHAN CLARK; MARY BOWEN, (Mme. JUMEL,) FRANK'S daughter, was back again in Providence, after that; I never saw her in Providence; I know that GEORGE WASHINGTON BOWEN was born there after she came back again; I was not born when GEORGE WASHINGTON BOWEN was born; GEORGE is older than I am; FRANKLOVE BALLOU went to Mme. JUMEL'S one day, taking me with her; no one else went with us to Mme. JUMEL'S; saw at Mme. JUMEL'S house, besides myself, my uncle, Mr. and Mrs. JUMEL and FRANKLOVE and me; might have stayed an hour; cannot tell how long; cannot tell what hour we got there; it was in the morning; MRS. BALLOU and myself ate dinner before we left; at table there were Mme. JUMEL, Mrs. BALLOU and myself; Mme. JUMEL and FRANKLOVE BALLOU had a dispute about GEORGE WASHINGTON BOWEN, after dinner; this was after Mr. JUMEL had gone; cannot tell how long the dispute lasted; there were very angry words, and then Mrs. BALLOU went back to my mother's; cannot tell how long they were talking about GEORGE; it may have been a half an hour; nothing was said about GEORGE in the presence of Mr. JUMEL about GEORGE, about the child of BETSY'S; as soon as Mr. JUMEL went out GEORGE was spoken of; Mme. JUMEL asked Mrs. BALLOU for GEORGE; she asked her as soon as Mr. JUMEL left; I can't tell exactly where the house was in which the visit was made to Mme. JUMEL; it was in the lower part of the City; cannot tell, on what street it was, unless it was on Broadway; I know it was not on Fifth-avenue or Broadway; as near as I can remember I think it was a brick house; can't tell how many stories high it was; I was a mere child; I think I was not more than six or seven years old; there must have been a place of business in this house downstairs; they might have kept a store downstairs, but I won't say positively; don't know but a child; if there was a store there; don't know was a store downstairs; my reason for thinking it might have been a wine-store is that Mr. JUMEL kept a wine-store; after that visit with FRANKLOVE my mother went to Mme. JUMEL'S house very seldom, but she came to my house; saw her almost every day; saw my mother and FRANKLOVE BALLOU at Mme. JUMEL, Mr. JUMEL and Mme. JUMEL; I don't remember the names of any persons I ever met at the house of Mme. JUMEL; never visited Mr. or Mme. JUMEL inside of day beside after that time I spoke of; Mme. JUMEL once visited me at a bakery I kept in Christopher-street; WILLIAM BALLOU was present and saw her, and he said that when he would back in Providence he would tell Mr. BOWEN that he had seen his mother.

Before the cross-examination of Mrs. VANDERVOORT was finished, a further adjournment was had.

THE MONARCHS OF THE DEEP.

An Old Lady Holding a First Cabin Ticket, if Put in the Steerage—Action to Recover Damages for Consequent Loss of Health.

A suit was commenced yesterday in the Supreme Court, Circuit, Part 1, before Judge SUTHERLAND and a jury, by MARY EVERETT against the Liverpool, New-York and Philadelphia Steam-ship Company, to recover $5,000 damages for violation of contract, and for injuries to plaintiff's health resulting from such violation. It appeared from the opening of counsel and testimony on behalf of plaintiff, that the son of plaintiff, who is a well-known liquor merchant, doing business in the neighborhood of Washington Market, of this City, in the year 1869 went to the office of the agent of defendant in this City, and engaged a cabin passage in one of the vessels of the line, from Queenstown to this City, in the first cabin, for his mother, the plaintiff; also passage by the same vessel, in the steerage, for his brother and brother-in-law. The tickets were procured and forwarded to those for whom they were intended, who presented them at the office of the sub-agent of the company in Limerick. This agent communicated with the Company's office in Queenstown, advising them to provide passage for all three to go by the City of Paris, to go in the same vessel. In pursuance of advice of the Company's agent [illegible] proceeded to the City of Queenstown, [illegible] at the office of the Company [illegible] instructions, awaited the [illegible] of the City of Paris. When this vessel [illegible] at Queenstown, the plaintiff [illegible] her son-in-law in the steerage, [illegible] for her and supplied [illegible] was the understanding [illegible] of passage, that all three were to [illegible] the same vessel, and that [illegible] alone. She was then [illegible] on the arrival of the City of Paris [illegible] [illegible] in the steerage for the voyage. [illegible] that, if it should happen that [illegible] had to come until the vessel was already on [illegible] out of port. The old lady was then [illegible] to go in the steerage, or be separated from her relations. It is now charged on her behalf that she was at first compelled to lie on bare boards; that she was without proper provisions for such a voyage; that she had to lie [illegible] on the food furnished to steerage passengers, which consisted of hard salt beef, oatmeal porridge, some rice, and what was called coffee; that although she was a woman who enjoyed general good health up to that time, she was unable to get out of her berth the morning after she got on board, and was thenceforward unable to do so during the voyage of thirteen days; that, when they entered this port, she, with the other steerage passengers were ordered on deck, and kept standing there for more than two hours in a drenching rain; that when she was found at Castle Garden by her son and daughter, she was [illegible] to faintness, and almost continually [illegible] that day to a sick bed-ridden; the most faithful nursing has failed to revive her. The medical testimony of the physicians who have attended Mrs. EVERETT during the past three years, concurs in tracing her illness to the unhealthful accommodations furnished her during the voyage.

On the part of the defendants it is claimed that the plaintiff voluntarily elected to go in the steerage rather than the separated from her relatives, and that there she was made as comfortable as the circumstances would permit, and had accommodations equal to those furnished the other steerage passengers. The case is still on trial.

ROOMS J. PAGE and Mr. MCCARTHY appear for the plaintiff; PLATT, GERARD & BUCKLEY represent defendants.

Work on the Stevens Battery at a Stand-still—Resignation of Gen. McClellan as Engineer—Funds Exhausted.

The long-talked of "Stevens Battery," which for the last twenty-six years has been in the course of construction, may now be said to be at a stand-still, as very few men are now employed upon the huge iron-clad. Yesterday our reporter visited the battery in question, to ascertain what progress had been made during the past half year, and found that but little had been done toward its completion, and at the present time there is no indication of any progress being made, unless Government should again take the matter in hand. From inquiries made by our reporter, he learned that the work had been stayed, owing to the want of funds, the last million of money bequeathed by the late Mr. R. L. STEVENS having been nearly exhausted. It is stated that the huge monster of the deep will soon have to make her exit from the stocks, owing to the cutting through of a new street in Hoboken, to be called River-street, which will occupy part of the space now occupied by the battery. After the death of Mr. STEVENS, the brother of Mr. ROBERT L. STEVENS, the well-known American inventor of implements of war, Gen. MCCLELLAN and a Board of Trustees had had the control of the ship's construction, and had made great alterations in the engine department and other parts of the vessel. The former engines have been removed, as they were considered too weak, and others of superior power have been put in their place, but others are still wanting. At the present time there are twelve boilers fixed in the hold of the vessel. Her outside, as far as the water-line, has been sealed over with oak, in order to make her still stronger.

The battery, which has undergone numerous changes, and almost been rebuilt, is now designed to be a fast steam-ram and iron-clad, and will be fitted up with guns, the number of which is not at present decided upon. In length she is 300 feet, but beam is 60 feet, and her height from keel to deck 30 feet.

She has a knife bow of iron, backed up with huge timbers—originally it was intended to have a prow or ram of sixty feet long, but under the direction of Gen. MCCLELLAN this has been removed. When completed she will be propelled by two powerful screws, worked by eight engines, which in turn are directed by and worked by two others, and the sole control of the vessel will be in the hands of the Chief Engineer. The hull is of wrought-iron of over an inch in thickness.

No point has been taken the vessel can be sunk below the water-line, by filling a compartment with water, thus presenting but a small surface at which the enemy could take aim, while the armor presents angles from which the balls would glance. Gen. MCCLELLAN, who received $10,000 a year as Chief Engineer, has resigned his position, owing to there being no funds, and now the battery is under the control of Engineer NEWTON, a nephew of Gen. NEWTON, and Mr. FERRIS. It is said that a thousand men could well be employed on this enormous structure, with which force it could be finished in six months. It is rumored that the STEVENS family have given up all claim to the battery, which has caused a fearful expenditure in its construction, and thus save themselves from the expense of an endless litigation with the authorities of Jersey City should they seek to claim her, under the decree made by Mr. STEVENS.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

A Question of Power Resisted—Treatment of Small-Pox Patients Explained—The Street-Cleaning Contractor Called to Account—The Board in Favor of the Abattoir System.

The Board of Health met yesterday in regular session. President BOSWORTH in the chair, and Commissioners Barr, Carnochan, Occoriani, Gunn, Masterly, Mullaly and S. Smith present.

Upon request of the Attorney, it was ordered that suits be commenced in fourteen cases of violations of the Tenement-house law, twenty-six cases of non-compliance with the orders of the Board, and two cases of violations of the Sanitary Code. Several physicians and old clergymen having rendered satisfactory excuses for failing to comply with the law requiring returns of vital statistics, the suits against them were ordered to be discontinued.

Mr. A. J. VANDERPOEL, the counsel, sent in a written reply to the resolution of inquiry, passed by the Board two weeks ago, in which he says that in his opinion the Board of Health had no power to clean unpaved streets, nor to pave streets where the same are out of repair. The opinion seemed to astonish the members of the Board, and the paper was referred to the Committee on Law and Ordinances.

The Sanitary Committee made a report recommending that the dumping of stable manure into boats, to be immediately removed from the limits of the City, be permitted on the east side at the foot of One Hundred and Sixth, Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh, Twentieth, and Rivington streets, and on the west side at Twentieth, Thirty-seventh and Fifteenth streets, which report was adopted.

A resolution was presented by the Sanitary Committee that a proper ambulance be procured as soon as possible, at a cost not to exceed $1,000, for the conveyance of the sick to hospital. The resolution was accompanied with a report showing that the vehicle now in use is illy adapted to its purpose, and a disgrace to the City. The report contained a plan and sketch of the proposed ambulance, which was approved, and the Finance Committee was authorized to execute the resolution.

A question in regard to the granting of a permit to slaughter outside the prescribed limits being presented, Commissioner BARR explained that a similar permit had been granted by all the orders of the Board. Commissioner GUNN then made some forcible remarks against the policy of granting permits to slaughter-houses, saying that it would lead to delay, if not defeat the adoption of the abattoir system, which is absolutely essential to the health of the City, and has been secured even in provincial towns in all well-ordered States in Europe. He said that he understood that at the next meeting a petition would be presented to the Board from a large number of butchers, for the erection of an abattoir. Other members spoke strongly in favor of the abattoir system, and the subject was finally disposed of by granting a permit, continued upon the applicant going into the abattoir when it is erected.

Sanitary Permit Inspector COOKER made a report showing that there are about 1,500 loads of manure and garbage mixed with the dead animals at the foot Gansevoort-street, which have been dumped there by the street-cleaning contractor. The report was referred to the Sanitary Committee. Another nuisance to be abated was presented in a petition from citizens in Thirty-seventh-street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues, saying that the Fisk concrete pavement is intolerable, as in dry weather it is blown into their houses as dust and in wet weather intracked in as mud. The matter was referred to the Department of Public Works.

Dr. MOMAN, City Sanitary Inspector, made a report showing that during the past two weeks contagious diseases were reported as follows:

Week ending March 11.—Fevers—Typhus, 1; typhoid, 4; relapsing, 1; scarlet, 80; small-pox, 61; measles, 81; diphtheria, 10.

Week ending March 18.—Fevers—Typhus, 1; typhoid, 6; relapsing, 1; scarlet, 69; small-pox, 61; measles, 33; diphtheria, 11.

Having made some extended remarks on what he claimed to be false statements, which have been made in reference to the treatment of small-pox patients taken to hospital, Dr. MOMAN said:

"The regulations of the Board of Health are that when a person sick with small-pox cannot be properly isolated, and the infection destroyed or retained under sufficient quarantine restrictions depending upon the particular circumstances surrounding each case, which must be carefully judged of after a personal examination by two Health Inspectors, with the concurrence of the City Sanitary Inspector, then he must be removed to hospital. And if the patient under those circumstances refuses to be moved, force may be used to secure his removal. In order that the removal of patients shall be done in a proper manner, with regard to their care and welfare, the Board has been most jealous in enforcing stringent rules upon its officers engaged in that duty. In performing these unpleasant duties the Board's officers have endeavored to carry out its spirit as well as the letter of directions. Any suggestions from its officers with reference to details, or any improvement upon methods of transportation and care, the Board have promptly applied. For this purpose a small but commodious steamer has been fitted up specially for the transportation of these cases from the City to the Hospital, upon which there will be constant medical attendance, and nurses who will have no other duty but the care of the sick. This will entirely obviate the necessity of detaining patients at a receiving depot awaiting transportation, as formerly. The patients will be carefully stripped from the moment of removal from their homes until they are placed in hospital beds, under the constant supervision of a medical officer specially detailed for the purpose. In this way every patient will be properly cared for.

Dr. CHAS. P. BOSSELL, Register of Records, reported 499 registered deaths for the past week, being a decrease of twenty-five as compared with the week previous. Small-pox and scarlatina present the only exceptions to the general falling off in mortality, twenty-five deaths having been ascribed to the former and twenty-six to the latter, against sixteen and fourteen, respectively, in the previous week. The deaths from measles diminished from twenty to nine; croup, from fifteen to nine, and typhoid fever from seven to one. Phthisis pulmonalis has yielded exceptionally high mortality since Jan. 1; its weekly average of deaths up to March 4 amounting to ninety-two, against seventy-five for the corresponding season of 1870, and sixty-eight for that of 1869. In the past week, however, it occasioned but seventy-nine deaths, being its lowest weekly mortality within the period mentioned.

Having transacted some miscellaneous business, the Board went into secret session at the invitation of President BOSWORTH.

The First Run of Shad.

The first shad of the season was taken yesterday between Staten Island and this City. It was of the ordinary size, and of very fine flavor. This is an indication of rather an early opening of the shad fishery here, and usually is deemed an omen of a fine supply. The extent of this business in the vicinity of this City is considerable. A large number of persons are employed, a great deal of capital is invested, and a handsome income is reaped. Last season the business did not open so early, and all the fishermen are now on the alert in preparation for active operations.

Formal Opening of the New Town Hall at New-Rochelle.

In New-Rochelle, a substantial and handsome brick public hall, 100 feet deep by 42 wide, has been erected and finished in a style which reflects great credit upon the Commissioners charged with this duty. The cost of the building and furniture has been about $60,000. It is situated on the corner of Main-street. The principal entrance to the public hall is on Main-street, and has a store on each side. On the floor level with the street there are also a Justice's Court-room and jury-room attached. Town Clerk and Collector's offices, also two fine rooms, which are designed for the future head-quarters of the Police Department of the village. On the second floor there is a fine public hall, 70 feet long by 40 wide, which is handsomely finished and furnished. Folding settees of black walnut have been adopted for seats, so as to admit of their removal when desired for the accommodation of balls and parties. There is also a fine gallery over the main entrance, and a gallery for musicians over the hall and dressing-room in the rear of the rostrum. The hall is well lighted by gas from a number of elegant chandeliers of unique design.

The formal opening of the new Town Hall took place last evening, and the event proved to be one of general interest to the citizens, who turned out quite almost en masse on the occasion, the beauty and fashion of the town being very largely represented. The programme of the exercises was as follows:

Grand "Town Hall March," composed for the occasion. Presentation speech on behalf of the Commissioners, by J. WARING HAWKINS, Esq. Solo, "Ave Maria Estella," Address by Hon. CLARKSON N. POTTER. Waltz, Address by JOHN FOWLER, Jr., Esq. Solo, "Barcarolle," "Sonnambula." Recitation by request, "Serenade del Carpio," by Mr. JOHN DYOTT. "Caro dee Zingari," "Trovatore," Address by JARED F. HARRISON, Esq. Quickstep.

RELIEF FOR THE FRENCH.

Letter from the Mayor of Arras, France—Amount of Subscriptions thus Far.

Mr. CHARLES H. MARSHALL, of the French Relief Committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce, has received the following from the Mayor of Arras:

ARRAS, March 4, 1871.
DEPARTMENT OF PAS DE CALAIS, MAIRIE D'ARRAS.

Mr. Charles H. Marshall, Chairman, &c.

SIR: MONS. DROUET DE LHUYS, President of the Society of Agriculture in Paris, has written me a letter, in which he states that your Committee is about to extend assistance to the farmers who have been ruined by the war. As a member of the council of this Society and Mayor of Arras, I would respectfully point out its sending as seed grain for the purchase of Sapanne, Barbesques, Crolecilles, and Pas en Artois, in which the lands matured by the farmers and others may be estimated as follows:

Sapanne	$108,000
Barbesques	30,000 francs.
Crolecilles	20,000 francs.
Pas en Artois	60,000 francs.

Any supplies of seed thus you may be disposed to advance to us will be carefully distributed by a commission named by the Central Society of Agriculture among the agricultural circles. I may add that the frost in destroying the wheat in the ground has taken away from our farmers all hopes of a crop for the next season. The marks of sympathy your country has shown our unhappy France is a solace to our misfortunes. We desire to testify in the strongest manner our grateful appreciation.

Receive, Sir, the assurance of the high consideration with which I am,

Yours, &c., &c.
G. DEURENY, Mayor of Arras.

The Committee have also received a letter from Bishop J. B. KEREVOOT, of Pittsburg, stating that he will suggest action by the clergy in his diocese to aid the suffering people of France. Mr. LAWRENCE, Treasurer of the fund, makes the following acknowledgment: Total amount received by the Chamber of Commerce Committee, $108,877 72. By Produce Exchange Committee, $15,936. Grand total, $124,813 72.

The Tompkins-Square Outrage—Arrest of the Assailants.

WM. CLARK, alias McGuire, whose photograph is numbered one in the album at Police Head-quarters, and "Blinky" SHERIDAN, another notorious character, were arrested yesterday, by Detectives DUNLOP and BRAN, of the Seventeenth Precinct, as the men who committed the deadly assault upon one JOHN LOMIS, in Tompkins-square, at 1½ A. M. of the 20th inst. It appears that although two officers of the Seventeenth Precinct, who were on post, knew of the affray in which LOMIS was severely, and, it was for a time believed, dangerously stabbed, they not only did not make any effort to arrest the assailants, but did not even report the outrage at the Station-house, so that Capt. MOURNY was in entire ignorance of it for some time; in fact, it was perpetrated, and for this gross dereliction of duty complaints have been made against them to the Police Commissioners.

The ruffians, in consequence of this neglect of the patrolmen, were difficult to discover, but were finally found at No. 200 Chrystie-street by means of two hats which they left behind them at the scene of the attempted murder. LOMIS received two stabs, one of which is under the shoulder-blade, and considered very serious, and although he was much better yesterday, he was still too weak to be confronted with the prisoners, and they have not, therefore, yet been identified by their victim, although no doubt is entertained that they are the parties who committed the deed. It has also been learned that during the same night, and before the assault on LOMIS, when in an Avenue D car, they replied to a demand for fare by stabbing the conductor in the shoulder, inflicting, however, only a slight wound, after which they jumped from the car and escaped. Both are well-known desperate characters, and the Police Authorities are determined to spare no efforts to bring them to justice. They are yet detained at the Station-house.

The Horse Market.

As the weather improves trade in horses increases, yet the sales are not many. There is a good prospect of a brisk trade within the course of the next ten or twelve weeks. At BRIGGS' sale stables, corner Forty-second-street and Seventh-avenue, there are a number of carriage and phaeton horses for sale. W. SAUNDERS reports sixteen head on sale, including eight trotters and four matched pairs, at prices from $800 to $2,000 for fast single horses and for matched pairs. S. HUNTINGTON reports ten head, all State horses, for harness work, and E. C. WILKINS reports twelve head of same class. Trade in East Twenty-fourth-street is fair. Since our last report several sales have been effected in harness horses for family use, and in trotters at prices from $400 to $850 to $600 for single horses, and from $900 to $2,000 for matched pairs. A few trotters have changed hands at higher figures, but they were special sales. Trade in heavy draught horses is good. Teams for large wagons sell for from $200 to $450 the pair. Canadian and French horses are in demand, and small teams of this kind sell freely at from $200 to $425 a pair.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

An important real estate sale will be held, today, at the Exchange, No. 111 Broadway, by MULLER, WILKINS & CO., at which over 100 uptown City lots will be disposed of. The property belongs to the estate of GOUVERNEUR MORRIS WILKINS, deceased, and is sold by order of the executrix. It has been in the family for years, none of it having ever before been offered at auction. The location is a very desirable one, the lots offered comprising two entire blocks, bounded respectively by One Hundred and Tenth-street, (Central Park,) Nicholas-avenue, Manhattan-street and Twelfth-street and the Seventh-avenue Boulevard. The sale is announced as positive, and as to the result of the auction great interest is evinced in real estate circles.

An inquest was held yesterday by Coroner YOUNG, in the case of ARTON JAEGY, a native of Switzerland, aged thirty-four years, who was found drowned on Sunday last, in the North River, near Forty-eighth-street. The deceased formerly resided at No. 232 West Forty-first-street, and quarreled with his female friend, Miss Fanny Fritz, on the 14th of January. On the 16th he left his home, and remarked that he intended to drown himself, and appeared to be in low spirits. No heed was paid to the threat, however, until it was discovered that he was missing. The jury impanneled in the case were unable conclusively to bring in a verdict of suicidal death, so rendered one of drowning simply.

Yesterday afternoon, as car No. 105, of the Third-avenue line, was proceeding up town, the axle of the hind-wheels broke, and the after-part of the car dragged along the track. There were about thirty passengers on the car at the time, and the driver persisted in compelling his team of horses to drag this load along the road. The poor animals tugged and strained every muscle in their bodies, but it was of no use, and the passengers, as great as the driver, pay very contentedly while the broken-winded horses made their fruitless efforts. Fortunately, one of those humanitarians who seem always at hand on such occasions, stopped the car, and as the driver would not desist from his brutal course, he was arrested by Mr. BENON'S officer and locked up.

At Essex Market Police Court, yesterday, before Judge LEDWITH, WM. H. SHINNICK and THOS. BARNOW were charged, at the instance of JOHN MCCAFFREY, of No. 167 East Thirty-second-street, with highway robbery. It appeared that on the previous evening, while passing through the Bowery, near Fourth-street, the prisoners struck Mr. MCCAFFREY in the head with a club, rendering him insensible. They then attempted to ride his pockets, but before they had accomplished that purpose they were detected and apprehended. They were committed for trial in the Court of General Sessions.

Judge BEDFORD yesterday sentenced BERNARD KAIZER to four years in the State Prison for receiving stolen goods from a lad named Geo. E. GEDNEY, who purloined them from BROOKS BROTHERS'. The Judge remarked that if receivers could be disposed of, there would be fewer young thieves.

WILLIAM OLIVER, another of the crew of the ship Neptune, yesterday received before Judge CURTIS, in the Marine Court, a verdict against Capt. PRABODY for $200. The case of BANKS, the fourth of the colored passengers, is still on trial.

THOMAS NOLAN and JULIA WILSON, both colored, were yesterday tried and acquitted, in the Court of General Sessions, on charges of robbing JOHN HAINES of $145 on "the old" panel game.

The New-York County Council of the Union League of America meet at their new head-quarters, No. 2 Bleecker-street, corner of Bowery, this evening.

There were seven cases of sudden deaths reported to the Coroners yesterday, who ascertained all to have resulted from natural causes.

In the case of KINSEY et al. vs. IVES, to recover about $15,000, alleged to have been paid for repairs to the Albemarle Hotel by plaintiff, and which, it is claimed, should have been made by defendant, under the terms of the lease, the jury have rendered a verdict for defendant. The case was tried before Judge VAN BRUNT, in the Superior Court, and the facts have already been published in the columns of this paper.

BROOKLYN.

GUSTAVUS COLEMAN, a cartman in the employ of ARBUCKLE & BROS., of No. 15 Water-street, was brought before Justice WALES, yesterday morning, on a charge of embezzlement preferred by his employers, who stated that several cases of goods that had been intrusted to him for delivery in New-York were not delivered. He was held for further examination.

About 10 o'clock, yesterday morning, JOHN BLACK, thirty-eight years of age, while at work on the steamer Mary Powell, fell through a hatchway a distance of thirty feet, and sustained injuries believed to be of a fatal character. He was carried to the Long Island College Hospital.

The Police Commissioners, yesterday, discharged from the force Officer MICHAEL O'BRIEN, of the Ninth Precinct, for using insulting language to his superiors. Officers DEVLIN and ROGERS were fined five days' pay each for inattention to duty.

There were 177 deaths in Brooklyn during the past week—39 men, 37 women, 49 boys and 52 girls; 21 died of consumption, 23 of pneumonia, 16 of disease of the brain, 13 of scarlatina, 1 of small-pox, and 1 of delirium tremens. Three of the deceased were over eighty years of age.

FERGUS FARRELL was convicted in the City Court, before Judge MCCUE, yesterday, of attempting to outrage MARY SCHNEL on the 5th of March last. Judgment will be pronounced today.

LONG ISLAND.

On Tuesday night one of the inmates of the house on Ferry-street, in Long Island City, in which a store is kept by Mr. LYNCH on the ground floor, heard a noise in the hall. Cautiously creeping down stairs, he distinctly saw what is supposed to be robbers in the lower hall. It being late at night, and the store having been robbed a few nights since, the lodger thought there was no doubt of his game, and, drawing his pistol, blazed away. The heart-rending shrieks of a female brought the neighbors in, and it was then ascertained that, instead of robbers, Mr. LYNCH and a lady friend had taken friendly shelter during the thickest of the storm, intending to leave as soon as the rain ceased. Fortunately, a slight scratch only was produced by the ball.

The cost of fencing in the small-pox in Long Island City and feeding the inmates, together with medical and medical aid, amounts to only $600. The Health Officer estimates that 800 persons were prevented from taking the disease by this radical measure. The number of lives saved it is, of course, impossible to estimate. The best of nurses, the best of food, and the best of medical aid were furnished. The number of deaths in the colony of twenty two persons was only one, and that an infant. The district in which the disease broke out was the poorest in the city. Great praise is due to the Health Board for their prompt action.

Yesterday the agent of Union College at Long Island City, Mr. AMABLE, sold a plot of land fronting on Newtown Creek, 100 feet dock frontage, for $25,000. Six years ago the same piece of land was sold by the College for $5,000, but purchased back advantageously since. During the last year, on account of the improvements in Long Island City and the establishing of a city charter, every foot of land in the city has increased 25 per cent. in value. It is estimated that as many buildings are under construction in the city, today, as in any five years previous, at any time in the spring.

A few days since one of the houses in Manhasset took a sudden start, and moved some hundred feet from the foundation-walls. The cellar, with all that was in it, was left behind. After investigation it was ascertained that the foundation-walls on the down-hill side had settled, and that side being the lowest, the building slid down without perceptibly injuring it. What was most singular about the affair was the fact that the occupants at the time were in bed, and experienced no decided sensation until morning.

Mr. NICHOLAS DORCHER, of the firm of DORCHER BROS., of New-York, met with a serious accident at the village of Whitestone, his residence, yesterday. While driving from the steam-boat dock, one of the wheels of his carriage came off, frightening the horses so that they ran at a fearful rate. Mr. DORCHER was thrown violently to the ground, receiving a compound fracture of the arm.

NEW-JERSEY.

In consequence of the wages of the boys employed in the Passaic Flint-Glass Works of GOSLING & CO., in Jersey City, having been reduced to a level with Brooklyn prices, about thirty-five of them have struck. Yesterday the strikers ascertained that other boys had been employed, which so incensed them that, with the jealous spirit of veteran strikers, they lay in ambush and made a vigorous attack on them as they were returning from their work in the evening. The Police quickly dispersed the malcontents before any personal damage was inflicted.

On Tuesday night a respectable-looking female was observed acting in a very strange manner in the ferry-house at Communipaw, Jersey City. She spoke incoherently, her hair and dress were disarranged, and her general appearance suggested a diseased mind. After remaining in the apartment some time she left, apparently to cross the ferry to New-York, but about 9 o'clock a man named WILEY found a woman's shawl and satchel on the edge of an unused slip. The satchel contained a half-written letter dated "Bergen Hill," as well as a lady's dress. In the course of the night a man entered the ferry-house and recognized the shawl and satchel as belonging to his sister. He gave his name as GEORGE HENDRICKS, and that of his sister Mrs. CUMMINGS, whose husband and child died last January, since which her grief knew no bounds. He fears she has committed suicide. Although she never showed any tendency that way, still a watch was kept on her movements. The family reside on Bergen Hill.

MARGARET DOYLE and BRIDGET CURLY quarreled about the respective beauty and sweet disposition of their promising offspring in Jersey City yesterday, when, as alleged, MARGARET hit BRIDGET a violent blow on the head with a brick. The latter complained before a Justice, and on her return was encountered by MARGARET, who inflicted a dangerous wound on the skull with a long-handled shovel. She was promptly arrested and in default of $1,000 bail, sent to jail to await trial.

At an early hour yesterday morning, the Jersey City Police noticed several groups of roughs disembarking from the ferry-boat, and slinking along to the outskirts of the city, through Newark-avenue. The authorities trailed them, and found that they had assembled to enjoy a pugilistic exhibition, but, as the principals did not appear, the "large and respectable concourse of spectators" reluctantly dispersed.

The small-pox is spreading in Hoboken. Twelve deaths have occurred in the hospital provided for such patients, and many more attacks of the disease in private families have ended fatally, but have not been officially reported. The attendance at the schools is alarmingly small, and some of the teachers think they might as well be all closed till the plague disappears.

The new Sunday-school building of the Second Presbyterian Church, Newark, will be dedicated to-morrow evening, and on Sunday will be formally opened. The cost of the building and furnishing is estimated at $18,000.
